Quality Seedlings, Shearing, Fresh Cut Trees Hallmarks Of Schuylkill Forest Farm

The Bacherts, who farm with Bruce, Sr., wife Jean, and sons Bruce, Jr., Joel, Jared, and Bret, maintain about 135 acres of Christmas trees. They grow mostly firs, including Douglas and Frazer. Also, they grow several varieties of spruce and also Scotch Pine. From left, Mike Onuskanich, Jean Bachert, and Nancy Killian at the homestead farm, which contains Scotch Pines.

NEW RINGGOLD (Schuylkill Co.) — In the rush to bring Christmas trees to market years ago, growers would simply cut down the trees and sell them as fast as possible.

Sometimes the trees were of poor quality, the needles would burn and fall off, and the trees — mostly Scotch Pine — desperately needed a prune job.

Those days were sent packing in this part of the country about 60 years ago when a man by the name of John Bachert began using the technique known as tree shearing. Beginning in mid-June and lasting until Thanksgiving, the trees were carefully cut and groomed to have the conical appearance that consumers prefer.

John Bachert, starting with 35 acres, gradually purchased more land to grow Christmas trees, carefully expanding the business. Others grasped onto the concepts that made his steadily growing business so successful.

But he was the first to demonstrate the technique of shearing on Scotch Pine trees in the eastern part of Pennsylvania, according to Harvey Bachert. "He started a lot of these guys," said Harvey. "He was a farmer, he farmed corn and potatoes and whatever, and then he started planting trees. He taught a lot of guys about it, that there was money in it."

Agribusiness Professionals, Farmers Gather To Discuss Future

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A group of 60 agribusiness persons and a few farmers convened early Tuesday morning under the auspices of the Lancaster County Extension Service and Glenn Shirk, dairy agent, and Alan Strock, farm management agent. The goal: to explore the internal and external problems facing county agriculture in the immediate future.

Sitting in round-table discussions, each group forwarded specific ideas on what were problems facing agriculture. Some of the problems that surfaced include: agriculture's resistance to change;

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

DEC. 26-JAN. 1, 1995

BOXING DAY, DECEMBER 26.

BOXING DAY

Why is the day after Christmas called Boxing Day? Is it really, as some people assume, because of the many boxes being returned to the stores? Or the piles of empty boxes stacked up in the recycling bin? Actually, the name originated in the old custom of giving Christmas gifts to servants and tradespeople on the day after Christmas The original boxes were made of earthenware which was quickly broken open to obtain the money gift inside Nowadays, the money gift is usually contained in a greeting card and given before the holiday Where celebrated (Great Britain, Canada, and Australia), Boxing Day is welcomed as a quiet day of recuperation from the season's more hectic festivities

The gift bringer always finds an open door.

OPINION

The Christmas Story

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.) And all went to be taxed every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:) To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the child. All they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.

For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

Now Is The Time

To Clean Vehicles

Getting your vehicle ready for winter includes more than checking the mechanical parts and fluid levels. It also means cleaning.

The best way to prepare the outside of your car or truck for winter is to clean it. Salt and snow are less likely to erode a clean surface. Dirt, salt, and stones accumulate in hard-to-reach nooks and crannies under the fenders — thus, holding moisture and promoting corrosion.

You may flush them out by using the garden hose's nozzle attachment or going to the local car wash. To properly clean a car or truck, attack the interior first.

Use a household vacuum cleaner to clean the carpet or rugs and seats. Next, clean the inside windows with a glass cleaning product to cut the hazy film.

Scrub rubber or vinyl mats with a brush saturated with a light duty liquid dish washing detergent. Mats cleaned this way will look almost new. When washing the exterior of the vehicle, start at the top and work down.

To Use Tractors Safely

Wednesday officially marked the beginning of winter. Even though planting and harvest seasons are the high risk times for tractor accidents, the lower use winter period should not be overlooked.

Farm safety specialists have noted that tractors used for towing are extremely unstable if incorrect hitching is used.

When towing a car or truck out of a snowbank, tow chains or ropes should be attached at the drawbar so that the tractor's center of gravity is not disrupted. Logs being dragged should also be hitched properly and a safe speed maintained so that any logs which may become wedged between stumps or fence posts will not result in a rear overturn.

Tractor operators should also reduce their speed on snow and ice covered lanes and roads. Many tractor overturns occur when they slide off the road's surface and into a ditch.

To Look At Farm Trends

A new USDA report titled "The New Generation of American Farmers: Farm Entry and Exit Prospects for the 1990's" makes some interesting observations.

More than 500,000 older farmers will leave farming between 1992 and 2002 and will be replaced by about 250,000 new and younger farmers. Farm numbers should decline to about 1.7 million by 2002 compared with 2.1 million in 1987.

That does not mean there is a threat to the food supply, because farms now produce so much more than in past decades.

The traditional pool of new farmers is made up of children who grew up on farms. With more people leaving farming than entering, there will be fewer but larger farms.

The challenge to young farmers entering farming is building equity. Fewer young farmers can easily replace the large number of older farmers if the transfer of assets across generations can be accomplished.

Government policy and family values will determine who will own farm assets. Farm operators are either looking at land rental or contract farming as a strategy to stay in farming.

Land rental permits farmers to take advantage of economies of scale of large farms with a smaller capital investments. This then permits entry to young farmers with limited financial resources.

Since contractors often furnish variable inputs, animal inventory and coordinate financing of buildings and equipment, contract production may allow entry by persons with lower equity levels.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "There is no exercise better for the heart than reaching out and lifting people up."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ARE YOU ONE OF THE WISE MEN?

December 25, 1994

Background Scripture:
Matthew 2
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 11:1-9

Marco Polo tells us that in his travels he came across a village in Persia from which, according to the villagers, the wise man started on their journey following the star of Bethlehem. Various scholars believe that the star which they followed might have been a conjunction of the planets Saturn and Jupiter in 7 B.C. or Halley's Comet in 12 B.C. It is believed that these wise men were astrologers and members of a Median tribe of priests or a Zoroastrian priestly caste.

The Bible itself — Matthew only — says very little of these men, only that they were wise men/Magi and from the East. Later tradition presumed that, because there were three gifts — gold, frankincense and myrrh — there were three of them and somebody later gave them names — Caspar, Melchior and Balthazzar — and put them on camels. Tradition also determined that Balthazzar was black. Historians tell us that an embassy of Parthian magi paid tribute to Nero at Naples in A.D. 66 and returned home by another route.

Smart Guys Vs. Wise Men

The traditional details make the story more colorful, but we must not miss some of the meaning implicit in the Biblical account. Beyond the facts of who and what they were and what it was that led them to Bethlehem, we can appreciate that these men, like Joseph and Mary, were persons who were responsive to God's revelation and had the faith to act upon it. As George Arthur Buttrick says, "the magi acted with abandon."

I love that sentence, but I doubt that I would live up to it. It is a long time since I have acted with abandon in matters of faith. Where and when did I learn such caution and reserve? Their example of faith serves to indict me of calculation when dedication is what God asks of me. Without the benefit of the Hebrew Old Testament or the Greek New Testament, these man found a message in the heavens and followed it. My own hesitancy is a sign of the times, for the really smart guys of today, the clever and calculating, the worldly wise and experienced — they wouldn't follow a star, no matter how bright.

Silent Night Holy Night

Something else about these men intrigues me; when they found the Christ child, "they went into the house, fell down and worshipped Him" (2:11). They didn't take any photographs, sell any souvenirs, or ask for autographs. That wasn't why they were there. As John Rusking put it: "These men, for their own part, came — I beg you very earnestly again to note this — not to see, not to talk — but to do reverence. They are neither curious nor talkative, but submissive." They came to do exactly what they told Herod: "...we have seen his star in the East, and have come to worship Him" (2:2).

There is nothing wrong in all the clamor that surrounds Christmas so long as we do not let it get in the way of what Christmas is really all about: to worship God in Christ and submit ourselves to Him. I love the carols, the decoration, the Christmas cards and letters, the holiday foods, the special activities and get-togethers, but most of all I love the "silent nights, holy nights" when I can realize once again "how silently, how silently the wondrous gift is given," and, meditating upon the meaning of the Christ Child, find Him reborn in me.

Being a wise man in this season means swimming against the worldly tide, for following the star always seems to be contrary to common sense and practicality. The smart guys, like Herod, know that and they never find the manger. But wise men abandon themselves to their faith and, following a different light, are the ones who find their way to the Christ Child.

To all readers: A VERY BLESSED CHRISTMAS

Here's a bit of the wild west in the heart of Happy Valley. Not exactly lions, but certainly "Penn State Proud," this current foal crop is sired by Lucky Zip (by Zip to Impress). According to inside information, these babies are looking sharper by the month. For the 1995 breeding season, The Clue Express (by Obvious Conclusion) joins Zip in Penn State's stud battery.

DO YOU HAVE A DRAFT PROBLEM?

Consider using a rigid type 316 stainless steel liner for your existing chimney. We use type 316 instead of type 304 for more acid resistance. We stock tees, ells and liners in 2 ft. and 4 ft. lengths.

Your Farm Credit Banker. Nobody Knows The Field Better.

Sure, you'll find Farm Credit bankers all buttoned up, ready to talk short- or long-term loans, mortgages and sophisticated lines of credit.

But underneath the shirt and tie, you'll find the one thing the other banks don't offer: A fellow farmer.

Most Farm Credit loan officers were born and raised on farms and got their college degrees from ag schools. Nearly all of them grew up with 4-H and the Future Farmers of America.

And, if that's not enough, every single one of our loan officers goes through the toughest ag lending training program in America.

That means when you talk to a Farm Credit loan officer about any kind of ag loan, you won't have to waste your time translating to someone who's book smart but farm foolish.

What's more, because Farm Credit loan officers understand farming as well as they understand finances, they're not only smarter, they're faster. After all, they have the same loan closing authority as many local bank presidents.

So when you need competitive rates or creative options, see your local Farm Credit banker. Because nobody knows the field better

Penn State Team Succeeds In National Contests

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Seven students returned this fall to represent Penn State at five livestock judging contests as members of the 1994 Livestock Judging Team.

Team members included Jason Ahola (senior, dairy and animal science, Woodstock, Conn.); Daryl Bomgardner (senior, dairy and animal science, Annville); Tom Gibney (senior, dairy and animal science, Colora, Md.); Ryan Mattocks (senior, dairy and animal science, Meadville); Andrew McIntire (senior, dairy and animal science, White Post, Va.); Gary Schick (senior, dairy and animal science, Oil City); and Nichole Willwert (senior, dairy and animal science, Red Lion).

Keith Bryan, instructor in animal science, coached the 1994 team, which was the tenth team of students he has worked with at Penn State.

The Livestock Judging Team started the fall season with a long trip to the Mid-South Fair in Memphis. Following practice stops at the University of Kentucky in Lexington, EE Herefords in Winona, Miss., and Cobb's Yorkshires in Lake City, Ark., team members were ready to compete. Bomgardner led the team to a 5th place finish in beef cattle, personally coming in 2nd. He also finished 3rd in sheep and 2nd overall, and the team finished 7th overall.

The Mid-Continent Livestock Exposition in Springfield, Ill. replaced the Eastern States Exposition in the 1994 judging lineup. After workouts at Quail Run Ranch in Slippery Rock, Banbury's Club Lambs in Danville, Ohio, Hoewischer's Yorkshires and Hampshires in Sidney, Ohio, and an opportunity to judge Maine Anjou and Chiangus/Chianina crossbred cattle at both Wolfe's and Abernathy's in Richmond, Ind., the Penn State team headed to the Springfield competition. They placed 3rd in sheep judging with Bomgardner finishing 4th and Gibney 9th. The team did not perform up to their expectations in swine and beef cattle judging, finishing 8th and 9th, respectively.

Bomgardner and Gibney finished 15th and 17th, respectively, in oral reasons and the team "outtalked" their placing scores, finishing 5th in oral reasons. In the overall tally, Bomgardner (14th) and Gibney (22nd) led the team to a 7th place finish.

Penn State's next contest was held in their own backyard at the Keystone International in Harrisburg. In a contest characterized by challenging beef cattle and sheep classes, Penn State held their own and had a respectable day. Bomgardner (14th), Mattocks (17th), Gibney (19th), and McIntire (21st) led the group to a 5th place finish judging beef cattle. Swine judging was another matter as team members again garnered four out of the top 25 places and two out of the top 10.

Bomgardner (3rd), Mattocks (9th), McIntire (16th), and Willwert (22nd) led the team to a third-place finish judging pigs. McIntire (11th), Bomgardner (12th), and Mattocks (18th) led the group to a 4th place finish in oral reasons. When all the scores were tallied, Bomgardner and McIntire had finished 14th and 21st, respectively, and the team came in 6th.

The final two contests of the Heat Your Home, Farm or Commercial Buildings with Mahoning Outdoor Furnaces

The Mahoning Outdoor Multi-Fuel Furnaces provide thermostat controlled heat by economically burning wood, coal, oil or gas. A furnace is placed 25-100 feet outside the structure to be heated; connections between the furnace and building are buried underground. Wood or Coal is the primary burning fuel lasting 8-12 hours in the furnace.

Now the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace can be equipped with Corning Catalytic Combusters. Burn 90-95% of the smoke, increase efficiency 50%, reduce wood use 1/3. Now you can burn wood or wood waste products in an outdoor furnace and also be environmentally friendly. No longer does an outdoor furnace have to be a smoke belching nuisance.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The theme is "Northwest Exposure," but no one is expected to suffer from frostbite at the 1995 Pennsylvania Holstein Convention, which has been scheduled to be held Feb. 23-25, at the Radisson Hotel, in West Middlesex.

Most convention details have been finalized, including a Feb. 7 deadline for ordering tickets and making room reservations.

The three-day event starts noon Feb. 23 with registration, commercial exhibits and a dairy bar open through till early evening.

The Pa. Holstein Association Board of Directors meets from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., while, starting at the same time, tours to the Wendall August Forge where handcrafted detailed metal crafts are made, and Grove City outlet mall, are scheduled.

Also, busses to the sale cattle barn will be available for those wishing to look over the consignments for the convention sale.

The convention sale starts at 7 p.m., and there is to be hot food and a sandwich bar at the convention area.

At the same time, the commercial exhibits are available for visiting. Later, from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m., the dairy bar re-opens.

In the morning Feb. 24, an early bird program is available from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., with highlights of some of the commercial exhibitors; the dairy bar opens at 8 a.m. and runs through the day.

From 10 a.m. through 3:30 p.m., the 1995 Pennsylvania Holstein Convention Ladies Program is to begin with busses leaving the Radisson-West Middlesex promptly at 10 a.m.

The first stop is "Tara" a country inn that has been designed based on inspiration from the movie, "Gone With the Wind."

A one-hour tour of the house (mostly) and grounds includes rare and priceless antiques, works of art and collectibles from the Civil War era. Some of the tour includes looks at some of the overnight rooms at the inn, including, "Rhett's Room," the "Confederate Getaway," and the "Plantation Suite."

After the tour, a family style southern luncheon is to be served at Tara. After lunch, Sharon Piano, of the Nutrition Council-Mid East, is to present a short program about calcium.

Then the group is to leave for downtown Sharon for shopping.

Pa. Jr. Holstein's Heartbeat: Alive In '95

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pa. Junior Holstein Association annual convention is scheduled to be held Feb. 10-12 at the Radisson Hotel, in West Middlesex, and promises to provide youth with an opportunity to discuss issues, meet fellow enthusiasts from around the state, participate in educational workshops and conduct business.

It all spells excitement for the junior members and adult leaders.

The theme is, "Holstein's Heartbeat — Alive in '95," and reflects a feeling of vibrancy in the industry by the young Holstein enthusiasts.

The committee of junior members and adult leaders, chair by David and Jill Trotter, have put together a fun and educational weekend for juniors of all ages, according to a news release by the organization.

A wide variety of activities is planned, including workshops, tours, a dairy bowl contest, dance, annual meeting, awards program, and much more.

Among some of the events planned are tours to the Wendall August Forge where handcrafted detailed metal crafts are made; the Grove City outlet mall for shopping; a tour of Dean Foods, a regionally significant dairy processor and foods manufacturer; and a tour of the Joy Cone Company, manufacturer of ice cream cones.

More information on additional activities is to be made available in weeks to come. However, the deadline for ordering convention tickets, and for making room reservations is Jan. 25.

Convention T-shirts should be ordered ahead of time also, an can be ordered along with a request for tickets. The shirts come in five different sizes: small, medium, large, extra large and extra extra-large.

The price per shirt is $8 and can be added to the total payment for tickets, when ordering.

Junior members intending to attend should be aware that there are behavioral rules in effect, and that approval and a signature of a parent or guardian is required on the request for tickets.

Rooms at the Radisson should be reserved by calling (412) 528-2501, and rooms are $60 each. Those calling should state that the reservations are being made in connection with the junior convention.

For more information on the convention, call the Holstein Association at (814) 234-0364. Checks and ticket forms should be sent to: "1995 PA Junior Holstein Convention" c/o Marlene Mitcheltree, RD 5 Box 80, New Castle, Pa., 16105, (412) 654-7869.

Enclosed Cattle Need Good Vaccination Program

CAROLYN M BURNS
PSU Vet. Sci. Extension

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — As winter approaches, your herd should be protected from diseases that can occure when animals must remain in an enclosed barn for long periods at a time.

A good vaccination program administed at the proper time can provice this protection.

You may want to review your vaccination program with a veterinarian to see if it combats the disease problems within your herd and location.

To decide which vaccinations are necessary, you will need to look at your herd's health records, and ask the following questions:

- Have there been any health problems such as diarrhea, pneumonia or other diseases?
- Has your herd experienced reproductive problems such as infertility, abortions or early embryonic death?
- Are there disease problems at neighboring farms that your herd needs to be protected against?

In Pennsylvania, the minimal vaccination program should include IBR, PI3, BVD, BRSV, and leptospirosis.

A veterinarian can advise you concerning the type of vaccine used and how often it should be administered.

There usually is a four- to six-week time period for peak immunity to build after the vaccination has been administered. Heifers or cows being vaccinated for the first time should be given a booster three to six weeks after the initial dose.

Remember to ask the veterinarian about recommendations on the frequency of booster vaccines.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Lancaster Farm Center Receives $10,000

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Under a legislative initiative requested by State Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36), the Farm and Home Center here received a $10,000 state grant for the installation of an elevator to comply with the federal Americans with Disabilities Act. Wenger presented the check to center officials on Tuesday.

Robert Zook, president of the Farm and Home Foundation, thanked Sen. Wenger for his efforts to secure the grant. "The funds will be used to help finance an elevator from the auditorium lobby to the building's lower level," Zook said. "Our ability to construct the elevator is a direct result of this grant, a gift from the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women and the Fiscal Management of the center's board of directors."

The elevator, which is in construction right now, will allow individuals previously unable to travel the stairs to do so. In addition, because the center will be in compliance with the disabilities act, it will be able to retain the existing tenants and attract a new tenant for the lower level office space.

The Farm and Home Center is used by agricultural and community service groups and since it opened, over 26,000 meetings have been held there, benefiting over 1,500,000 attendees.

Remember Christ our Savior, was born on Christmas Day.

Northeast DHIA Reports Progress At Annual Meeting

ITHACA, N.Y. — The 7th Annual Meeting for Northeast DHIA delegates was held recently in Cortland, New York. Overall, delegates seemed positive and enthusiastic. Northeast DHIA recognized the accomplishments of the Cooperative over the past year and is looking forward to expanding their service area as well as marketing several new products as 1995 begins.

General Manager Nelvin Empet gave his report beginning with a review of the mission statement:

To improve the dairy herd by providing high quality dairy herd information systems and laboratory services for the dairy industry.

The focus for Northeast DHIA is on improving the dairy herd. High quality will be the guide. The use of information systems will be the method of managing the herd for improvement. Laboratory services will be part of providing the information. Noteworthy are those things missing from the statement. No mention is made of traditional Official records although they are part of the system on many member herds. Nor is there a geographic limitation on the service area in the new competitive environment for DHIA's.

During the past year Northeast DHIA realized a number of accomplishments. The top 10 include:

10. The Check Mark Milk Laboratory continued to grow with the addition of a bacteriology lab for industry work.

9. The unbundled fee system was implemented and expanded into the Flex Quote system to add competitive flexibility in meeting members needs.

8. A competitive mindset for Field Services is developing as the service area for Northeast DHIA is expanded into Pennsylvania and Vermont.

7. The business unit structure for operations sets clearer expectations for management.

6. Financially, the Cooperative remains strong with adequate reserves for needed capital investments.

5. Dairy Management Technologies sales of Dairy Comp 305 software and Afikim herd management systems are on target. The ability to import directly from Israel has reduced costs to make the Afikim product even more competitive.

4. The Forage Lab remains strong with another high volume year of over 88,000 samples at high quality levels for accuracy and timeliness.

3. A strategic plan was developed and adopted by the Board of Directors.

2. The Day-One System is now the standard way to collect information on the farm and to provide reports on sample day.

1. High quality products and services remain the hallmark of Northeast DHIA.

An international perspective was brought to the meeting by keynote speaker Doug Batchelor from National Milk Records in England. He outlined their plans for a unified system of records using the microcomputer.

One of the highlights of this year's meeting was Arden Nelson, DVM who spoke on the value of testing for Milk Urea Nitrogen, MUN: The next important milk component.

For the past year the Northeast DHIA milk lab has been testing a machine that will give results for MUN. Nelson is enthusiastic about having another tool available for "consulting the cows". He sees MUN as an important component in evaluating protein levels in the ration since high protein can be flagged through MUN analysis.

Northeast DHIA plans to begin selling the Milk Urea Nitrogen testing service within the next several months.

Scout

A second highlight of this year's Annual Meeting was the introduction of Scout. Scout is a new herd management software package from Northeast DHIA that provides an affordable alternative to Dairy Comp 305. It is a powerful, menu driven program designed to be quick and easy to use. It requires absolutely no computer or keyboard skills. Scout also interfaces with DHIA processing centers so Scout users can automatically download milkweights and component information after test day.

Perry County DHIA Meets

LANDISBURG (Perry Co.) — The Perry County branch of Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association recently held its 69th annual meeting and banquet at the Landisburg Fire Hall.

The meeting celebrated another successful year for the association and the 74 herds enrolled.

After a roast beef dinner served by the fire hall, awards were distributed.

Herd management awards were given to J. Wilmer Horst, Landisburg; Ed & Wilma McMillen, Landisburg; and Carl & Brent McMillen for herd production above 21,000 pounds of milk.

In the 19,000-21,000 pounds of milk production level, Danny Rice, Blain; Robert and Bernice Gabel, Newport; and John & Tim Adair, Loysville, won herd management awards.

Indian Springs Farm, Blain; Ron Fauth, Loysville, and Carl Kresge, Loysville won herd management awards in the production class below 19,000 pounds

High milk and protein individual cow production awards were given to: Jesse & Barb Singleton, Landisburg, 2-year-old, 28,884 pounds milk and 839 pounds protein; Ray McMillen, Loysville, 3-year-old, 28,837 pounds milk and an aged cow 950 pounds protein; Ed & Wilma McMillen, Landisburg, 3-year-old 934 pounds protein and a 4-year-old, 952 pounds protein; Nevin Rice, Blain, 4-year-old, 30,805 pounds milk; Carl & Brent McMillen, Loysville, 5-year-old, 32,399 pounds milk and 1,021 pounds protein and an aged cow, 31,883 pounds milk.

After presenting the awards, County Agent Dave Swartz drew the audience's attention to the listing of cows producing over 200,000 pounds of milk in their lifetime.

The oldest milking cow in the county that is on test was cow No. 29 owned by Melvin Weaver, Ickesburg. This remarkable cow has produced 284,635 pounds of milk in 15 lactations and has recently calved and started her next lactation.

The number of enrolled cows on test continue to grow in the county. Figures for this past year show that 5,195 cows were tested by the three county DHIA technicians, J. Michael O'Toole, Blain: Walter Stydinger, Elliottsburg, and Bob Ormsby, Millerstown. The average production for county herds enrolled on DHIA was 19,031 pounds milk, 696 pounds fat and 605 pounds protein.

Speakers for the evening included State Director Brooks Smith, Newport, who commented on the continued financial challenges facing Pa DHIA. He noted some of the actions taken to decrease expenses and the steps taken to maintain a competitive business.

Jim Boyer, from Pa DHIA, spoke on the continued use of portable laptop computers by the technicians in their normal herd testing work. He also detailed the arrangements by which DHIA members can purchase and use the Westfalia Dairy Plan to keep their dairy herd records and monitor their herd's performance.

In other business, Keith Martin, Loysville, Steve Innerest, Ickesburg and Billy Lyons, Loysville, were elected to a three-year term on the county DHIA board of directors.

excessive regulations by unfriendly proponents; labor problems; lack of management ability; consumer education and product promotion; lack of record keeping; wrong measure of success; high fixed costs, and nutrient management problems.

Also, farm, non-farm interface problems; farming as a way of life, not a business; social pressures; non-farm land use; animal rights; lack of research; unfavorable tax climate; lack of cooperation among farm groups; negative media and variable imput costs.

In commenting on the outcome of the meeting, Shirk said, "You are our eyes and ears to help us find the real successful operations we can use as examples. This is an excellent example of how we in extension can work together with you to help each other."

The consensus was that we are facing change on farms, and we need to make information available. If farmers don't accept the needed changes, they will be out of business. Comparing agriculture to non-agriculture, we know other industries have changed. And we need to help farmers make the needed changes so that the outcome is palatable and profitable to those who stay in business.

Of special note was the idea that the agribusiness industry must do what is right for the farmer even though it may lose a customer.

The county agents then showed the industry leaders the Dairy-MAP education program from Penn State that is being used to help farmers increase their management skills.

Farm Bureau Addresses Property Tax Dilemma

Callicoon, N.Y. — Farmers attending the annual convention of the New York Farm Bureau strengthened their stance on several concerns important to agriculture and rural New York, including ways to deal with property taxes that have jumped 48 percent since 1987.

Attended by 450 farmers from all across the state, the state convention was held at the Villa Roma Resort Hotel in Callicoon.

Newly-elected NYFB President John Lincoln, an Ontario County dairy farmer, said that delegates at the Farm Bureau convention approved a host of policies aimed at making state government more business friendly. "Farm Bureau wants to see our state government economized — and that means making it smaller, more efficient, and more responsible."

For New York farmers, the property tax is the number one burden. The delegates approved new policy that calls for "a statewide cap on all equalized real property tax rates."

They said, "Any future revenue needs above current rates must be generated from income or sales tax." Keeping with their stance from past years, they called for cost containment of state mandated programs, like Medicaid, in order to provide tax relief for the overburdened taxpayer. They also reaffirmed their support for the concept of an agricultural circuit breaker program as a means of reducing the heavy school tax burden weighing on New York farms.

Last year, Farm Bureau and the other business groups in the state successfully worked for the elimination of the 13 percent surcharge on workers' comp providers, as one way of reducing hefty premiums. Recognizing that the current workers' compensation system serves neither employers or employees in an efficient manner, this year's delegates said, "the entire system must be re-evaluated to provide timely benefits to injured employees at a cost which is affordable to the employer." Among other reaffirmations in this area, they called for prohibiting third party lawsuits (Dole vs. Dow), and prohibiting raids, on the State Insurance Fund.

Regarding the protection of private property rights, Farm Bureau delegates approved expanding its numerous policies on this critical issue by supporting a position that supports "the development of a formal impact statement on private property rights for any new legislation, regulatory action, or local ordiance." They also recommended "an increase in penalties for entering onto private property without consent and doing damage to crops and fences with a vehicle or by other means." Once again, Farm Bureau recommends the enactment of a law "which protects the property rights of an individual against all actions of either the legislature or an agency of government which compromises the use of the property without proper compensation to the owner."

The organization also reaffirmed their support for voluntary, incentive-based programs to address agricultural nonpoint source pollution. The State Environmental Protection Fund is an important source of funding for water quality programs.

PASA To Hold Greener Future Conference

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — More than 100 speakers will discuss a multitude of topics on Farming for a Greener Future at the Fourth Annual Conference of the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, to be held Feb. 3-4 at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Tom Frantzen, an innovative crop and hog producer and past president of the Practical Farmers of Iowa, will be the keynote speaker. Also featured will be Doug Parker, New Zealand dairy grazing consultant; Will Brinton, compost expert of Woods End Ag Institute in Maine; Chip and Susan Planck, organic vegetable producers from Virginia; Gail Feenstra, nutrition educator from University of California; and Dan Skow, veterinarian and soil health expert from Minnesota.

Workshops will focus on green agriculture, and all that it entails: farming with green — cover crops, grass-based farming, intensive grazing, and soil health — as well as farming for the green — profitability, marketing, and sustainability. Sessions will range from the basic, for people who are just learning about sustainable techniques, to more advanced sessions for people with experience.

A series of workshops focused on dairy production will be a new emphasis this year. In addition to drawing on the knowledge of many Pennsylvania dairy producers and specialists, attendees will hear from Joe Meudt of the Wisconsin Rural Development Center who will discuss his own seasonal dairy operation as well as the Dairy Grazing Project he coordinates for the center. The project includes documenting the economics of grazing and seasonal dairying, as well as on-farm and university-based feeding research.

Doug Parker, a native New Zealand dairyman, and well-known grazing consultant, now at Shelburne Farms in Vermont, will be on hand to talk about New Zealand dairy grazing systems and their applicability to Pennsylvania. Parker will also discuss the economics of grass-based dairy farming.

The Plancks will lead a workshop on the innovative use of equipment, rotations, and management strategies deployed on their 50-acre organic vegetable operation. Brinton will participate in three workshops, discussing his research with farm-scale compost, mineralization, and disease control. A session on the connections between animal and soil health will be led by Skow, of International Ag Labs.

Sustainable agriculture is being looked at to provide an innovative foundation for learning and education in another new focus area this year. The evolving role of gardens, farms, and universities as tools for learning about sustainability and linkages to a variety of community institutions will be featured in sessions on education projects in Pennsylvania and California. These workshops offer the opportunity for farmers and non-farmers to learn from each other.

Other concurrent tracks in the program include soil health, grazing, field crops, marketing, vegetables, fruit, and education. In addition to production techniques, sessions will look at how to start farmers markets, community supported agriculture, backyard comporting; the impacts of BGH, food banks and inner-city farm stands, and urban encroachment on farmlands.

This year the ever popular farmer-to-farmer exchange sessions will provide indepth farm-based education on grazing livestock and vegetable varieties for farmers markets.

Another exciting addition to this year's proceedings will be participation by a group of cooperative extension agents from Pennsylvania and other Northeastern states, who will be attending the conference to learn more about sustainable agriculture from its practitioners. As part of this training, a group of Pennsylvania extension personnel will also be participating in a day-long workshop with PASA member farmers to learn more about sustainable farming prior to the conference.

If you would like to request a registration brochure, call PASA at (814) 349 9856.

Corn, Soy Producers Join Forces With Vegetable Growers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Commercial vegetable growers in Maryland and Delaware are invited to join their corn and soybean counterparts on the Delmarva peninsula for the first-ever Delmarva Corn/Soybean and Vegetable Conference.

The two-day educational event is scheduled January 12 & 13 at the Sheraton Inn on U.S. Highway 13 north of Dover, Del. Sponsors include agribusiness organizations along with the cooperative extension service at land-grant universities in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

Now in its 15th year, the Delmarva Corn and Soybean Conference will lead off the joint program with a general session carrying out the theme, "Ag Technology: New Horizons/Old Problems."

Topics will include predictions on the proposed 1995 Farm Bill, nitrogen fertility management of soybeans, crop insurance reform, and new products for fighting tough weeds.

The corn and soybean conference continues after lunch, but vegetable growers will have the opportunity to attend concurrent sessions on processing crops or direct marketing.

Corn and soybean conference afternoon topics will include presentations on micronutrients in crop production, slugs and bugs affecting corn and soybeans, precision farming, and the first Gary Smith Memorial lecture.

The latter presentation honors the memory of Gary L. Smith, former agricultural engineer and farm safety specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park. Smith died in 1991 from a form of blood cancer. He had requested that memorial donations be used for pesticide safety education.

Giving the memorial lecture will be Stanley H. Schuman, medical director of the Agromedicine Program, a joint project of the Medical University of South Carolina and Clemson University. Schuman will speak on "Cancer, Diet and Pesticides."

The Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association will hold its 25th anniversary meeting at the same location, from 3:15 to 5 p.m., following the corn and soybean educational session.

Delmarva Corn and Soybean Conference scholarships will be presented during a Thursday evening banquet, along with career recognition for industry leaders by the Maryland and Delaware vegetable growers associations.

Friday morning's program on Jan. 13 will start off with a plenary session on "The Coastal Zone Management Act and How It Can Affect Your Farming Business."

Following will be concurrent sessions on general vegetable crops, potatoes and fruit production. The vegetable session continues in the afternoon, along with a separate series of reports on farm-oriented research projects related to Profitable Agriculture and a Clean Environment (PACE), a cooperative extension service sustainable agriculture program begun in 1991 for Maryland and Delaware farmers.

Admission on both days of the conference is free. Noon lunch is available at moderate cost on an individual basis. Tickets to the Thursday night banquet are available in advance at $20 each, or they may be purchased at the door for $25. Penn State Team Succeeds In National Contests season were the American Royal in Kansas City, Mo., and the National Contest at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville. After a month-long respite, team members were anxious to prove their abilities in the most difficult contest annually for teams east of the Mississippi. A smooth plane ride from University Park to Kansas City paved the way for the remainder of what would prove to be a very educational and worthwhile trip for the Nittany Lions.

The long weekend began on Wednesday with a workout at Prairieland Genetics, where the team viewed some of the finest Hampshire hogs in the country and visited with Dr. Robert Hines and Brian Hines. At Thursday morning's workout they viewed five classes of Angus bull calves and three of Angus heifer calves at Fink's Genetics (owned by Galen and Lori Fink). After lunch, they judged four cattle, two sheep, and two swine classes at Kansas State University.

Friday morning began with a two-hour drive to northeast Kansas to judge Shorthorn cattle at Grathwohl's, and then on to Ackerman's Simmentals. The last practice stop was at Burke and Farao Hampshires and Suffolks, where the team placed five classes of breeding sheep before heading on to their ultimate destination.

With 22 teams and 110 individuals competing, the American Royal was the second largest contest of the year for Penn State. Because it's generally the first true test of each year against some of the finest teams from the midwest, the American Royal contest has been somewhat intimidating to Penn State students in recent years.

This year would be different, with the team ready for anything and anyone. Bomgardner finished 25th in sheep judging and led the team to a 9th place finish in this species. Ahola placed 20th and Bomgardner placed 22nd in swine judging. The Penn State team finished a respectable 10th in swine.

The judging team continued their success in the reasons room, coming in 9th in oral reasons, as Bomgardner placed 20th.

However, the most notable placings of the day and the claim to fame for the 1994 Penn State Livestock Judging Team was their extraordinary performance in judging beef cattle. All five of the Penn State contestants finished in the top 50 percent, including Ahola (7th), Bomgardner (8th), Gibney (24th) Mattocks (46th), and McIntire (51st). This performance garnered an astonishing third-place finish in beef cattle and led the team to a 6th place finish overall.

Bomgardner had a very consistent day overall, finishing 9th in a very competitive field. This competition marked the first time in the last 13 or so years that a Penn State team finished in the top 10 overall, let alone in the top 10 in each category, and as high as 3rd in any species.

A confident Penn State team headed to a difficult and challenging competition at the National Contest in Louisville. In preparation, they visited Ohio State University in Columbus, Shadwell Limousin Farm and the University of Kentucky in Lexington, and Stonelea Shorthorns in Prospect, Ky. A total of 34 teams representing institutions from Pennsylvania to Florida and Oregon competed in the 89th National Contest.

Mattocks led Penn State with an 8th place finish in sheep judging. The team finished 7th in the class of performance Dorset ewe lambs and 25th in sheep. Swine judging was difficult, with the group finishing 24th. Team members continued their cattle-judging success from the American Royal as Gibney and Mattocks placed 17th and 25th, respectively. The team placed 8th in beef cattle classes with performance data, 7th in Shorthorns, and 9th in beef cattle overall. In oral reasons, the team placed 15th and finished 10th overall in all classes with performance data. Mattocks finished 12th overall out of 170 contestants, and the team finished 22nd overall.

Although the results at the national contest contrasted those from the previous week at the American Royal, the 1994 Penn State Livestock Judging Team will be remembered for an exceptional day of judging at the American Royal. They will be known as the "Kansas City" team.

Hunters Harvest 1,377 Bears

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — After surviving a near weather washout on opening day, Pennsylvania hunters who dried out and returned to the hunt brought 1,377 bears to Pennsylvania Game Commission check stations. This is a preliminary figure for the three-day Thanksgiving Week season.

While the 1994 bear harvest is well off the record of 2,213 taken in 1989, it still ranks as the fourth highest in the last five years. Normally, about 60 percent of a three-day season's harvest occurs on the first day. This year, 624 bruins were processed through check stations. The combined total for the second and third days was 753.

Preliminary tabulations show Lycoming County led the state with a harvest of 132 bears. Following were Clearfield, 113; Clinton, 95; Centre, 86; and Pike, 70.

Additionally, preliminary figures indicate that 652 bears were taken within the northcentral region. The northeast had 384: northwest, 136; southwest, 120; southcentral, 57; southeast, 28. Preliminary county harvest totals for the three-day season were:

NORTHWEST: Clarion, 24; Crawford, 1; Forest, 16; Jefferson, 33; Venango, 34; Warren, 28.

SOUTHWEST: Armstrong, 9; Cambria, 18; Fayette, 4; Indiana, 36; Somerset, 27; Westmoreland, 26.

NORTH CENTRAL: Cameron, 20; Centre, 86; Clearfield, 113; Clinton, 95; Elk, 41; Lycoming, 132; McKean, 36; Potter, 41; Tioga, 69; Union, 19.

SOUTHCENTRAL: Bedford, 4; Blair, 13; Huntingdon, 20; Mifflin, 15; Perry, 1; Snyder, 4.

NORTHEAST: Bradford, 26; Carbon, 28; Columbia, 21; Lackawanna, 30; Luzerne, 45; Monroe, 55; Northumberland, 4; Pike, 70; Sullivan, 39; Susquehanna, 3; Wayne, 45; Wyoming, 18.

SOUTHEAST: Berks, 2; Dauphin, 1; Northampton, 1; Schuylkill, 24.

INVESTIGATION CONTINUES

In other news, Willis Sneath, director of the Game Commission's Northcentral Region, has announced that an investigation continues into an illegal deer baiting incident in Farmington Twp., Tioga County. The investigation began Tuesday, Nov. 29, the second day of Pennsylvania's antlered deer season.

According to Sneath, as many as nine individuals face charges for the killing of 20 illegal deer. Four Tioga County residents and five individuals from Lehigh and Northampton counties are being investigated. Preliminary information indicates that 13 antlerless deer and seven buck were killed from baited stands on the property.

Charges for violations of the Game and Wildlife Code could exceed $50,000.

Tioga County District Attorney John F. Cowley is assisting Game Commission officers in the investigation.

Bruce Bachert, Sr. and family, including Harvey, his uncle, and Bruce's family still carry on the tradition of purchasing quality seedlings and maintaining the practices that Bruce's great-grandfather began and perfected at Schuylkill Forest Farm.

"Growers from all over the state used to come here to see what he used to practice," said Bruce Bachert during an interview at his 253-acre Christmas tree farm in the heart of Hawk Mountain Valley, along the southern ridge of Schuylkill County. Bruce grows about 135 acres of five varieties of Christmas trees on three different tracts of land in the Mill Mountain and Hawk Mountain region.

Bruce said that quality is more important than quantity in the operation. This is a hallmark started by his great-grandfather, John Bachert.

The technique of shearing would impress growers, because "a lot of people years back used to just take the wild trees, they wouldn't shear them, they wouldn't do anything with them," he said. "They would just go out in the woods and cut wild trees."

Bruce said the Bacherts were the first in the area to actually cultivate Christmas trees just like corn to a grain farmer. They were the first to "put the trees in the ground just for tree production.

"A lot of people in the area do it now," said Bruce. "It's a thriving business."

Bruce said the business is very manual-labor intensive. Big equipment has little or no place in the businesss because of the exacting nature of maintaining the individual trees.

"It's an industry that you've got to like," said Bruce. "If you don't like it, I mean, you're not in it for long. Believe me."

Bert Bachert, Bruce's uncle, took over the business from John Bachert in 1954. For 37 years, Bert Bachert ran the business until it was purchased by Bruce in spring of this year.

The Bacherts, who farm with Bruce, Sr., wife Jean, and sons Bruce, Jr., Joel, Jared, and Bret, maintain about 135 acres of Christmas trees. They grow mostly firs, including Douglas and Frazer. Also, they grow several varieties of spruce and also Scotch Pine.

In addition, they maintain 15 acres of hay for several horses.

Most of the Christmas trees are grown for bulk wholesale to markets in New Jersey and Philadelphia. They manage a small local retail operation. About 90 percent of their business is cut trees for wholesale, but they also make wreaths, garlands, and bows for the season, according to Jean Bachert.

From spring until mid-June, stump removal, cultivation, and seedling planting (from reputable local dealers) are undertaken by the Bacherts. From mid-June until Thanksgiving, the trees are sheared. Beginning at Thanksgiving, cutting begins. By the beginning of December, cutting is a full-time chore, beginning at 7 in the morning and often lasting until past midnight.

"We started right before Thanksgiving," said Jean Bachert. "Our first orders went out Thanksgiving Day. And it's been a rush ever since."

At the day of the interview, the Bacherts were busy cutting and baling 200 Douglas Fir trees at a 70-acre parcel in the Hawk Mountain Valley for shipment to a market in the Bronx, N.Y. Orders of hundreds of trees were still being filled, and the cutting continues until about four days before Christmas.

The Douglas Firs are about 12 years old and range in height from 6-8 feet. Schuylkill Forest Farms cuts trees ranging from "tabletop" size at 4 feet, up to 14 feet trees purchased by churches, civic organizations, and others.

Trees are carefully notched to indicate "seconds," because of discoloration, unevenness, or other factors that may indicate a lack of quality. The trees are wrapped by a "baler," then stacked in a hay wagon, and eventually loaded into a tractor-trailer for shipment.

Quality is utmost in the minds of the growers. Jean Bachert pointed to one tree that was slightly open near the bottom. "It might look perfect in someone else's eyes, but my husband says that's a second," she said.

"I try to deal with quality instead of quantity," said Bruce Bachert. "That's what my uncle always used to stress. If you deal with quality, he used to say, you don't have to deal with the numbers."

Fortunately, since the glut of poor Western-type trees of the late 1980s and early 1990s ruined some demand for fresh cut trees, growers have been faced with carefully rebuilding their niche in a now sometimes overloaded market.

"It seems like things are turning around, again," he said. "I'm in Harvey Bachert, right and grandson Bruce harvested 200 Douglas Fir trees on this tract in the Hawk Mountain Valley. The Bacherts, with full-time help from Randy Martin, were busy cutting and baling 400 Douglas Fir trees at a 70-acre parcel in the Hawk Mountain Valley for shipment to a market in the Bronx, N.Y. the business for the long haul." He said that, as a small family farm, it is hard to survive with fluctuating prices and uncertain markets.

Bruce said that one quality practice is to hold off cutting the trees if the weather is too warm around Thanksgiving. If the weather warms up too much, the tree needles can turn brown and fall off.

"If it's warm, we hold off on cutting," he said. "We try to keep the people happy with fresh, quality cut trees.

"Quality and freshness are what we try to strive for," he indicated. The key is to buy from a reputable dealer that will stand behind his trees.

"I always stand behind my trees," said Bachert. "If there's a problem with my trees to the consumer, I hope he comes back to me, so I can keep him happy, because I don't want him to go out and buy an artificial tree."

Randy Martin helps use the baller to wrap a freshly cut tree at Schuylkill Forest Christmas Tree Farm.

Gov. Casey Signs Ag Bills

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Robert P. Casey recently signed a series of bills designed to improve farm and food safety, control animal diseases, and help farmers reduce nitrogen pollution.

"Agriculture is an important economic engine in Pennsylvania, and it has been given the highest priority under my administration," Casey said.

"The very first legislation I signed when I became governor back in 1987 was a law that gave agricultural producers control of their own marketing programs," he said.

Bills signed by the governor will transfer restaurant inspections from the Department of Environmental Resources (DER) to the agriculture department and establish a food employee certification program for people who supervise workers who prepare food.

The Governor signed the following bills:

Senate Bill 729—provides a training program for people who supervise food service workers, consolidates food inspections under one agency by transferring restaurant inspections from DER to the Department of Agriculture and broadens the Department of Agriculture's authority to oversee organic food certification and regulation of maple syrup production.

The bill also amends agricultural-related statutes relating to the Commercial Feed Law and provides for registration of apiaries.

The food certification portions go into effect in 90 days, maple products and restaurant inspection portions July 1 and the remainder in 60 days.

House Bill 2505—provides a grant and loan program to support safety education programs and encourage farmers to install safety devices on their machinery.

The bill goes into effect in 60 days.

Senate Bill 492—provides loans to purchase machinery or install equipment for sustainable agriculture practices that improve soil and water quality and help reduce reliance on chemicals and fertilizers. The legislation also provides grants for farmers and nonprofit educational groups to experiment with alternative crops.

The bill goes into effect in 60 days.

Senate Bill 728—provides loans to concentrated animal operations that adopt specialized agricultural practices to prevent nutrient run-off and soil erosion as part of the Chesapeake Bay cleanup.

The bill goes into effect July 1.

Senate Bill 439—provides matching funds from existing funding sources to construct six anaerobic manure digester demonstration projects so farmers can see how that technology can be used to deal with nitrogen pollution from livestock manure. The bill goes into effect in 60 days.

Senate Bill 1046—permits the Department of Agriculture to pay indemnities to compensate owners of nontraditional farm animals which are condemned to protect animal health.

The bill goes into effect in 60 days.

House Bill 2542—requires humane officers to receive instruction on the cruelty to animal laws care and treatment of animals, rules of criminal law and training in animal husbandry practices.

The bill goes into effect in 60 days.

House Bill 2367—amends the Clean and Green Law to forgive roll-back tax provisions in cases where landowners donate land to a school district, municipality, county, volunteer fire department, ambulance service or non-profit corporation. The measure also permits a landowner to avoid the roll-back penalty if he or she conveys property to a nonprofit corporation for use as a cemetery.

The bill goes into effect immediately.

DRPC Raleigh Holds Annual Meeting

RALEIGH, NC. — The annual meeting of DRPC Raleigh was held recently in Raleigh. Highlights from the meeting included no increase in DRPC Raleigh fees for 1994-95. The financial report showed a profit for the last two years. Another profit is projected in the 1994-95 budget.

An update on the results of processing and mailing reports on the same day was given. DRPC Raleigh began color laser printing of DHI reports in March of this year, and effective September 12, began processing records twice per day. The time from date of test to date processed at DRPC dropped from a regional average of 3.8 days to an all-time low of 3.0 days in October, 1994. This interval was 2.0 days for 50% of the herds processed.

Participation in DRPC Raleigh programs was updated with increased enrollment realized in all areas. A total of 7,740 herds and 927,056 cows in 25 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands were processed at DRPC Raleigh as of September 30, 1994. Participation figures for October, 1994 and October, 1993 are shown in the table below.

A proposal was presented to develop a version of PCDART for consultants. An updated version of PCDART (version 5.0) is currently being tested and is to be released by the end of this year. The group approved development of PCDART for consultants for release in early 1995.

A new marketing strategy for the PCDHI program was approved that will expand sales to service affiliates outside the DRPC Raleigh region. Currently, non-DHIA producers use PCDHI as a stand-alone dairy management system. Interfaces will be developed to allow DHIA members to use PCDHI with the DHI system in other DRPC regions.

The next meeting of the DRPC Raleigh cooperative will be an advisory board meeting scheduled for March 25, 1995 in Burlington. Vermont prior to the National DHIA Annual Convention.

AGRICULTURE'S LEADING EDGE FFA

Looking Back, Looking Ahead

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Looking back is often a nostalgic business.

When I look back, I think fondly of the days when I worked in the field with a horse team. Even now, as winter approaches, I remember hauling loads of fodder beets for the cows from the trench silo several miles outside my village near Heidelberg, Germany.

The work was rugged and the cold almost unbearable at times — for me and the horses — but I still manage to cast the memory in a romantic light.

It's that time of the year now. We may sit around the fireplace to warm up, reflect on those years and consider how far we have come.

Where I grew up, we milked by hand, so 20 cows was the maximum one person could be asked to do twice a day as fulltime milker.

Today, we don't have to stoop; we can stand up in a "parlor" and milk a lot more than 20 cows without great discomfort, either to us or the cows. We even have parlors in which one person can milk more than 100 cows per hour for several hours. That's progress! What efficiency of labor!

Why, then, are we sentimental about the old days?

You'll have your own thoughts, but I think the slower efficiency, the unhurried pace of life, the not being driven by machines and computers made things easier. We had time to sit back at the fireplace, to contemplate, to reminisce.

Still, we can be thankful for the progress and better efficiency on our dairy farms. We feed more people more cheaply, helping to reduce hunger around the world.

When I was given the responsibility of the University of Delaware dairy herd 37 years ago, our Holstein herd milked barely 8,000 pounds per year; the national cow numbers were around 15 million. Today, the national herd is under 10 million and our university herd averages more than 21,000 pounds of milk per year (and this without stimulants).

At the same times many of our dairy farms have disappeared because of the increased efficiency and higher output per cow. We have 178,000 dairy farms in this country, down from almost 800,000 farms 37 years ago, a shrinkage of 78 percent. Is this why we're nostalgic about the old days?

Four decades ago, New Castle County here in Delaware was wall-to-wall cow country, a county green with farms surrounding Wilmington and the little town of Newark.

Today, two dairy herds remain — one at the university — and the county is covered with houses.

At best, one in 10 of my students come from farms; 37 years ago most of them did.

Now I take my portable milking machine and model rubber udder to elementary schools, high schools and youth camps to demonstrate to youngsters where their milk comes from.

You should see the happy surprise on those kids' faces when they put a finger into one of the teat cups and feel the vacuum and pulsation that milks the udder. Then they see the milk come through the teat cup and the clear plastic hoses into the bucket!

Because of our progress in efficiency, are we losing part of farm life and nature and green space? Is this way of life irretrievably lost to a major part of our population? Is that why we are sentimental about the good old days despite the hardship? Perhaps we can be thankful for our Amish dairy farmers who still hold on to the farm life that we can only reminisce about.

I found an interesting and relevant statistic: people in this country spent 22 percent of their income on food 25 years ago. Today it is only 15 percent, a measure of our progress for the common good.

At the same time, income spent on medical costs 25 years ago was 10 percent; today it averages 14 percent!

What can we look forward to?

Just as the last election made the statement "enough is enough," there will come a time in this sprawling urbanization when we'll have to make a statement about the loss of our dairy and family farms and green spaces.

Studies show that for human health, people require a certain amount of green space. And what better system can you find but dairy and livestock farms, where grazing is the major part of the feeding system, to preserve our precious green space in an attractive and satisfying way?

How will we cope financially?

Among our five leading U.S. dairy states, cow numbers in California are up by 3 percent. In Wisconsin, cow numbers declined last year by 1.8 percent, in Minnesota by 3.9 percent and in New York by 2 percent. Pennsylvania showed no change. Total milk production was 1 percent higher in Minnesota, 3.3 percent in Wisconsin, 1.2 percent in Pennsylvania and 7.7 percent in California! New York had no change.

At the same time, milk prices at the farm gate averaged $1.50 less in California than in Wisconsin, and Wisconsin dairy farmers ask how Californians can profit while getting paid less for their milk.

So, looking forward for the farmers in Wisconsin (and probably for us as well) will include considering how to invest less money in overhead and produce the same quality of milk cheaper.

I have tried over the last years to stay away from rewarding record production, as attractive as it might be, and have concentrated on the "bottom line" in our dairy business, offering ideas from research and practice to improve dairy farm ledgers. Among better nutrition, better health and better reproduction in our dairy herds, our best opportunities are in trying to improve the many inefficiencies in reproduction.

A recent survey of Pennsylvania dairy herds indicates that only 15 percent of the herd managers use synchronized prostaglandin-induced controlled breeding of cows after calving to overcome the costly problem of silent estrus and missed estrus observation.

Controlled breeding has been proven to lessen the variation in calving intervals among cows and reduce long average calving intervals in the herd. It also decreases culling of certain cows when they have failed to come into heat or become pregnant again in a reasonable time after calving. Controlled breeding will reduce the time and cost spent for heat detection, and improve net return, the bottom line, because more cows are in their natural peak production.

I've seen forecasts of farm gate milk prices for the coming year that should average $0.10 per hundredweight more than last year, despite higher potential production.

Because of a good hay and corn crop this year, feed prices should stay low.

And, finally, because of better commercial milk sales over last year's, the outlook for our dairy farms is good as we begin another year.

Happy New Year!

Biosecurity Vital To Controlling Swine Disease

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Pork producers should understand the three rules of biosecurity in controlling swine disease: "isolation, isolation, isolation," according to Dr. Warren Wilson, veterinarian with Miles Animal Health.

Wilson spoke to 150 pork producers and agribusiness representatives at the first annual Pork Production Forum at Yoder's Restaurant on Wednesday.

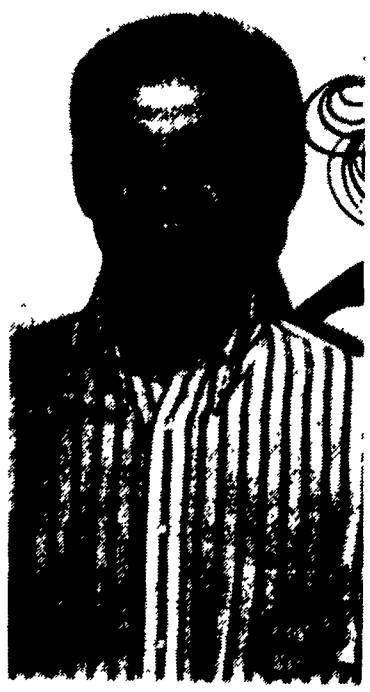
According to the Miles veterinary technical services veterinarian, two areas pose special problems in controlling swine disease: the area of load-out and how dead animals are handled.

What producers should concentrate on in limiting disease transmission and outbreak on the farm are the location of facilities and "people management." And disease should be handled, not only because it can be extremely costly, but because of the "frustration factor" for the business.

"The frustration factor of disease on people is really demoralizing," Wilson said.

Following are procedures that producers use to successfully control disease:

- Provide shower-in, shower-out facilities for workers. Monitor those who enter the hog facility. Make sure they follow the cleanliness procedures before entering any hog facility.
- Provide an office or lounge area for personnel to change into unit clothing.
- Ensure that workers don't exit the facility with unit clothing.
- Make sure the facility is bird- and rodent-proofed, totally enclosed on concrete.
- Keep monthly pest control procedures on schedule. Monitor and control rodents.



Scott Augsburger, Reynolds, is one of the new Lancaster directors of the LanChester Pork Producers.

Slaughter trucks should be monitored intensively. "Slaughter trucks are one of the most likely ways for the farm to get contaminated," said Wilson. "It is extremely critical you make sure you know where the truck has been."

Also, producers should be careful when "sharing equipment," because that's another potentially dangerous source of disease.

Feed trucks are another potential source. In Wisconsin, all feed truck companies carefully clean and disinfect the trucks on a regular basis. Also, monitor corn quality for mycotoxins and other source of pathogens. Feed spills also provide a tremendous source of bacteria and viruses that can be transmitted to swine by birds and rodents.

Wilson challenged the producers to employ the technique known as MBWA — Management By Walking Around — by taking a look at all areas of the operation and fixing up those that put swine health at risk.

"Pig production is basically people management," he said. "The best swine producers keep careful details with records. Detail people are very good with swine producers."

Also, the vet can also be a potential source of disease introduction into the farm. It is important that the vet also employ good biosecurity on the farm — making use of sterilized equipment and supplies.

Wilson emphasized the importance of proper animal disposal (using enclosed incinerators in a separate building or some way of adquate disposal that doesn't threaten farm biosecurity) and load out (using one-way gates and doors and using all-in-, all-out procedures that don't mix potentially disease-carrying hogs).

For maximum production and maximum profit, Wilson indicated the producer should be concerned about the swine environment. "If we can have a 90 percent farrowing rate and 10-11 pigs born alive and bring all to farrow that are bred, we'd have no problem," he said.

Unfortunately, that's not the case with many producers.

Producers should look into what may cause prolonged weaning-to-estrus intervals (excessively hot or cold environment?), make sure estrus is detected on time (is this a management or social problem?), low farrowing rates (under 50 percent is critical and needs to be looked at closely), and dealing with pseudopregnancy (is it caused by disease, enviromental, or feed?)

Ultimately, the facility has "a tremendous influence on reproduction," said Wilson. Producers should follow the "50-80-50" rule — swine breathing should not exceed 50 respirations per minute, the house temperature should never rise above 80 degrees F., and the humidity should never exceed 50 percent in the house.

Dr. Warren Wilson, veterinarian with Miles Animal Health, spoke to 150 pork producers and agribusiness representatives at the first annual Pork Production Forum at Yoder's Restaurant on Wednesday.

Wilson indicated that producers should work closely with their feed provider and veterinarian to employ methods of controlling disease on the farm.

Abe Fisher, Pennsylvania Pork Producers, told the producers that the pseudorabies virus (PRV) Eradication Program is continuing to improve the PRV status in the state. At this time last year, he said, there were 118 quarantined herds. As of Wednesday, there were 78. Of the 78, 72 had herd plans, and 13 were testing off. However, there are six herds that still must begin a successful eradication program.

Fisher said that Pennsylvania is still only at the Pork Quality Assurance Level II, while many other states are at level III and beyond. Delaware is at Level IV, New Jersey at III, and Ohio at III. If the number of herds under quarantine in Pennsylvania drops to 75, the state is eligible to go to Level III.

Plans are important to protect the other producers who have brought PRV under control. Those that haven't developed and implemented a herd plan could face depopulation in the future, Fisher indicated.

Also, review of Level II and III programs and certification were provided during two concurrent seminars at the meeting.

The Pork Production Forum replaces the annual LanChester Pork Producers Annual Banquet, normally scheduled for January. At the meeting this week; new directors were elected. They are Ronald Butt, Lincoln University, Chester County; Scott Augsburger, Reynolds, Lancaster; and Robert Hess, Mount Joy, Lancaster.

Jurchak To Retire

Editor's Note: We at Lancaster Farming will miss retiring Lackawanna County extension agent Thomas Jurchak's reports on dairy market activities and the effects on farmgate prices. For years, Jurchak's insight and conversational writing style made his Milk Market News column an integral part of the Lancaster Farming newspaper. Often considered one of the most difficult subjects on which to report, because of the uniqueness and complexity of the market and regulations, Jurchak consistently made the complexities of dairy pricing understandable. Always well-received, his column has helped to educate, enlighten and entertain many thousands of readers. We thank him, and wish him well.

THOMAS JURCHAK
Lackawanna Co. Extension Agent
(As of Dec. 14)

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Three consecutive months of increasing milk production, followed by lower cheese prices finally caught up with the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price (M-W) for November.

After struggling to get a 25-cent increase in October, it took a drop of 43 cents to $11.86 in November, but still not reflecting the full impact of falling cheese prices that fell over 5 cents the first two weeks of the month.

The M-W is now 89 cents less than last year, but still $1.87 above the support price. However, looking back to January, the average M-W for 11 months this year was $12.06, compared to $11.73 a year ago, and that's an increase of 33 cents in a year when milk price averages were expected to fall below the 1993 levels.

On The Skids

You could see it coming from the last week of October, when cheese prices, for the first time in 20 weeks, dropped a half-cent, and then another 10 cents in November.

In December, the tempo slowed down to a 1-cent drop the first week.

On Dec. 9, barrels dropped another cent, and for blocks there was no change.

Now we have barrels and blocks selling for $1.21 per pound, which is where they were in June.

Last spring, the low price was $1.18, and hopefully that's about where it will end this month. The "no change" in the block prices last week was encouraging, but more adjustments are coming.

The free fall in cheese prices the last seven weeks adds up to nearly 12 cents a pound, and that could translate into a $1.20 drop in M-W.

If that happens, the M-W is in for another 77-cent skid to about $11 in the next month of two.

Not All Bad

All that this reflects are changes in dairy product prices that have occurred this month, but won't show up in your milk check until next year.

Farm prices in all federal milk market areas will show increases in the checks you get in December. That should help you enjoy the holidays a lot more.

So, on that positive note, I'm sorry to say that this is the end of the line.

End Of The Line

I'm retiring from Penn State at the end of the year, so this will be my last market report for the Milk Market News column, and the Northeast Dairy Marketer from Cornell, but I'm sure it will be continued by more capable hands in the future.

I started the Milk Market News over 18 years ago, at the urging of dairy producers in northeastern Pennsylvania, and, as nearly as I can tell, wrote about 300 issues that were distributed over several states with the help of other county agents, extension specialists, industry leaders and farm publications, all of whom I thank sincerely for their cooperation.

And an equally large "thank you" to all those people who helped me to understand milk marketing and kept me informed on issues and changes, so hopefully producers would have sound information for management decisions as a result of these newsletters.

I was only the messenger.

It really has been an enjoyable part of my extension career. Something I wanted to do because producers felt there was a need for it.

Milk marketing information is now more readily available than in the past, but I hope I have contributed to a better understanding of what producers read and hear.

So, I leave thanking all of you who have helped me in my training and supported me in my efforts to inform producers, and I offer whatever talent I have developed in the past to anyone who wants to make use of it in the future.

Happy holidays.

Chemsweep Signup Deadline Nears

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Farm families in 10 counties have until Dec. 31 to sign up with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for participation in the one-time "Chemsweep" program.

The disposal of pesticides is one of the most difficult, expensive and potentially hazardous concerns that agricultural producers face, especially if the pesticides are in old or unidentified containers.

While not restricted to any type of pesticide container, the program was especially designed to provide a way for people to get rid of old containers that may be sitting around in buildings, basements, or sheds. This service is not designed to be a long term project. It's goal is to provide an opportunity for people to make their homes and properties safe with the least amount of personal cost and inconvenience.

Sometimes the containers have banned pesticides or are without labels.

The Chemsweep program is being made available to people in Armstrong, Berks, Butler, Chester, Columbia, Erie, Luzerne, Mifflin, Montour, and York counties. However, those who wish to be included on the list for container pickup must sign up with the PDA by Dec. 31.

The program is open to every farm in these counties, but is not restricted to dairy or livestock operations. The public service is open to any person or operation with pesticides, such as nurseries, lawn care and landscapers, Christmas tree and greenhouse operators, or mushroom growers.

Individually, the cost of properly and legally disposing of the pesticides would most likely be prohibitive, but through this public service program, there is no charge to participate.

To ensure disposal of containers, farm families are being asked to fill out a disposal registration form. The form must include (if possible) the product name, EPA registration number, formulation, size and quantity of the container. Materials without labels may be analyzed by the PDA for identity, before being taken.

This information is needed only to help PDA plan for the on-farm pickup of these products. The pickup will be scheduled sometime in 1995.

For more information, or to obtain a pesticide disposal form, call the local cooperative extension office.

AGA Board Approves 1995 Budget

REYNOLDSBURG Ohio — The American Guernsey Association Board of Directors held its annual meeting Dec. 2 and 3 in Reynoldsburg, Ohio. The board, lead by President E. Cline Brubaker of Rocky Mount, Virginia, approved a number of actions for the association for the upcoming year.

• The board accepted an invitation from the Kentucky Guernsey Breeders' Association to host the 1998 World Guernsey Conference. The conference will be held in Louisville, Kentucky.

• The AGA will sponsor a consignment sale at the 1995 World Dairy Expo. The AGA intends to market 20 to 25 top-quality animals at a sale following the National Guernsey Show in Madison, Wisconsin.

• The board approved a Western National Show to be held in Sacramento, California. The awards and premiums for this show will be sponsored. The Western National Show will be held in addition to the current national shows in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Madison, Wisconsin; and Louisville, Kentucky.

• The board approved that future national outstanding youth and national queen winners will receive a free lifetime AGA membership.

The board approved fee changes reflecting increases in inflation. They include:

• Guernsey Breeders' Journal advertising fees were increased 10 percent effective with the February 1995 issue.

• Pedigree fees will be raised from $4 to $5. Total Performance Evaluation and non-TPE herds will pay the same price for pedigrees.

• Breeders on the TPE program can receive pedigrees for $2 if purchased at the time of registration.

• Embryo transfer fees will be $10 per embryo or $15 per calf resulting from a transferred embryo.

The board approved a budget with a deficit of $5,225 for 1995. The AGA has shown an improved net income over the last four years. This has been accomplished while maintaining quality services to members. The 1995 budget brings the association closer to a positive budget while providing opportunities for promotion and expansion in several areas. The approved budget will require the AGA to reduce staff by one person. The appraisal director's position will be moved back into the Reynoldsburg, Ohio, office and be combined with other responsibilities.

The AGA is developing a new trademark to capitalize on the beta-carotene content in Guernsey milk, which is three times higher than commercial milk. This new trademark, called Beta Life, is in the research and development stages.

In other news, the ninth annual 3-year-old Guernsey Gold Futurity was held in Louisville, Kentucky, on Nov. 6, with judge David Jones of Yale, Oklahoma, placing 18 animals in the show.

The winner was Marfred Smokey Della, an 83-point Wampanoag Fayette Smokey daughter owned by Marfred Farm, Saluda, South Carolina. In addition to their first place winnings of $342.99, Steve and Johnna Mills wefe presented with the Shirley Wright Memorial Award, a silver champagne cooler, sponsored by Leroy and Nita Lindley and Ralph and Martha Turley, Ohio, and the first place banner sponsored by Ernest Berousek, Oklahoma.

"Della" also won the Russell Wenger Memorial Best Bred and Owned Award, a silver tray, sponsored by Carlton Wenger, Indiana. With the highest Cow Performance Index of the show with +274, the Mills' also received an octagonal wall clock donated by Bay Meadow Farms, California.

Going home with the second place revere bowl sponsored by R-Way Farm, Ohio, was Atlasta Gusto Almost. This 88-point Atlasta Rons Gusto-Twin daughter is owned by John and Donna Salava, Leroy, Kansas. The second place prize money totaled $285.83.

The show was competitive for production awards, as well as the type awards. Ayars Lindsey V Lornas Lily-ET, an Excellent-90 Bettswards Telestar Victory daughter owned by Lucas Ayars of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, ran away with the production awards and placed third in the show.

With a record of 20,020M 4.8% 958F 3.5% 697P at 2-01 in 305 days, "Lily" won the high milk production silver water pitcher sponsored by American Breeders Service, the high butterfat production silver bread dish sponsored by Marfred Farm, South Carolina, and the high protein cheese tray sponsored by Tri-State Milk Cooperative.

This excellent record was produced in a superior udder as "Lily" was awarded the best udder award, a footed silver tray, sponsored by Four Winds Farm, Wisconsin.

Jan Lambrecht represented juniors well earning the first place junior exhibitor award with Lambrecht Fayette Ella, an 87-point Dutch Mill Telestars Fayette daughter. Jan was presented with a silver mirror picture frame sponsored by Branstetter Dairy, Kentucky.

The total pot for the 1994 Guernsey Gold Futurity was $2,286.60. The breakdowns for payments for the top four placings are as follows: 1st $342.99; 2nd $285.83; 3rd $228.66; and 4th $171.50.

In the national Guernsey show, judge Merv Scott of Ontario, Canada, was put to task as he judged the largest National Guernsey Show of the year with 251 animals. Judge Scott crowned the third grand champion of the season. First there was Littlefields Fayette Mona Lira in Harrisburg, Pa., and then there was Westlynn Tom Dee in Madison, Wisconsin. Now, there is a third. Round Pond Fayettes Molly, the first place 4-year-old, is owned by John and Bonnie Ayars and Sons, and Matthew Oliver of Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

Westlynn Tom Dee, no stranger in the national winner's circle, nudged her way behind "Molly" to receive the reserve grand champion title. "Tom Dee", the 94-point first place aged cow, is owned by Mark Rueth, Randy Kortus, and Clark and Joy Vilter, Jefferson, Wisconsin. She is housed at Four Winds Farm of Hartland, Wisconsin.

Peytons Andy Laddie, owned by James Berryman of Nicholasville, Kentucky, surfaced to the top to win the title of junior champion. "Laddie" was the first place junior yearling. The first place intermediate yearling, Ayars Lindsey S Murphy owned by Austin and Lucas Ayars of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, was named reserve junior champion.

Marfred Farm of Saluda, South Carolina, exhibiting in 11 classes and placing in the top three in nine of those classes, was awarded with the premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners.

Earlier in the week, Judge Brian Schilling of Boggstown, Indiana, placed 123 Guernseys in the largest national junior Guernsey show of the year.

Ludy Griggs of Seminole, Oklahoma, showed the grand champion, Wincrest Fayette Cocheta, Very Good-88, was a 1993 unanimous All-American and Junior All-American winner.

Amanda Sparks of Greenfield, Indiana, owned the reserve grand champion, for Lou Farrns Smokey Miracle, a junior 3-year-old, also the best bred and owned animal of the show.

Peytons Andy Laddie, the first place junior yearling owned by Julie Peyton of Harrodsburg, Kentucky, was crowned junior champion of the show. Ayars Lindsay S Murphy, the first intermediate yearling, was named reserve junior champion. "Murphy" is owned by Austin and Lucas Ayars of Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

Juniors from across the country competed in this National Junior Show held in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Kentucky.

AI Studs Form Joint Marketing Plan

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Federated Genetics, 21st Century Genetics, and Noba plan to represent each other in their respective marketing areas starting with the January, 1995 sire summaries, according to a joint announcement by the three AI organizations. This means that as a partner in Federated Genetics, Atlantic Breeders cooperative will add Holstein sires from 21st and Noba to its sire lineup for members. Earlier this year, all three organizations began carrying semen from their Color Breeds sires.

The AI cooperatives say this joint marketing plan will help each organization involved meet their members' needs while improving competitive positions. They point out that these benefits are achieved without additional investment in facilities or more sires.

One exception in the new marketing agreement concerns dairymen in northeastern Ohio, where Atlantic continues to carry only the Federated Holstein sires while Noba offers only their own and 21st's.

Further details will be provided as the new sire lineup is presented in January.

The marketing agreement follows an earlier announcement that Noba joins 21st and Wisconsin DHIA in being subsidiaries of Cooperative Resources International. As a result, current 21st sires will assume the stud prefix code number 1. Sires owned by Federated Genetics partners Atlantic, Eastern, and Louisiana are identified with stud code number 8.

Other members of the Executive Board are John Harry Hartman, Joseph Johns, Verdean Keyser, Jeff Leydig, Dennis Reiman, Barbara Shaffer, Betty Lou Svonavec, Jim Wysocki, Wendell Yoder and Dennis Zimmerman. Legislative Leaders Praised For New Ag Law

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff today commended the Chairmen of the State House and Senate Agriculture Committees for leading a successful bipartisan effort that addressed several important food safety issues.

Wolff said Representative Bill Lloyd (D-Somerset) and Senator Roger Madigan (R-Bradford) led the fight for passage of Senate Bill 729, that codified many agricultural-related issues and updated numerous food safety and product standard provisions.

"This important bipartisan accomplishment recognizes that food safety has been a top priority at the Department of Agriculture, and it sets the stage for new efficiency in government by consolidating most food safety responsibilities within a single Commonwealth agency," Wolff said.

Under the new consolidated statute, inspections of restaurants will become the responsibility of the Department of Agriculture, which already inspects markets and processing facilities.

"Consolidating functions so that the Department can follow food products every step of the way from the farm to the table makes good sense for consumers, restaurants, food producers and taxpayers."

"The new law will also establish a program under which supervisor employees in restaurants and food processing facilities will be certified after demonstrating their knowledge of food safety."

"That new program was requested by the food industry, which has worked with the Department to improve food safety for consumers."

That certification program will begin as a voluntary program that will become mandatory by the year 2001.

In addition, SB-729 updates the Bee Law through a registration program for apiaries; it changes the commercial feed law to bring Pennsylvania's requirements into conformity with those of most other states; it establishes a grading and licensing program for maple syrup products; and creates an organic food program within the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The Pennsylvania organic food program will be modeled after federal organic food standards set by the 1990 Farm Bill.

National Dairy Summit Encourages Eastern Milk Producers' Leaders

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producers' newly reorganized board came away from a national dairy summit in Dallas, Texas "determined to take advantage of opportunities in the changes and challenges facing the dairy industry in the months ahead," said Eastern President Lewis Gardner.

Gardner, of Galeton, attended National Milk Producers Federation's Dairy Summit from Nov. 28 to Dec. 1, along with his new slate of officers, who included: vice president Edwin Schoen of Phelps, N.Y.; secretary Jerrel Heatwole of Greenwood, Del.; treasurer Warren Herklotz of Franklin, N.Y.; assistant secretary-treasurer Larry Allen of Chelsea, Vt.; and at-large executive committee member Gerry Mesick of Castleton, N.Y.

The Federation's annual gathering of dairy cooperatives represented three-quarters of the nation's milk supply, Gardner said.

Recognizing that change is upon us, and that we better adapt were two major themes of the summit, Gardner said.

"As Federation CEO Jim Barr told us in his keynote speech, 'Today we stand at the threshold — one more critical than any we've faced in the recent past," Gardner said.

He said Eastern's board agreed with Barr that, "We must make fundamental decisions about our industry."

With that in mind, Gardner said, "We're looking at seizing opportunities in the changes all around us for the benefit of Northeast dairy farmers.

"National and international markets are impacting us in the Northeast," Gardner said. "Whether it's the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade, better known as GATT, or the upcoming 1995 Farm Bill, we're preparing now for change by working more closely with other cooperatives and dairy organizations to give us combined bargaining power, not to mention greater resources that will allow us to respond to the changing marketplace."

Eastern's president noted that for decades, Congress and the dairy industry itself have been talking about the need for greater unity among dairy organizations. "We're tired of talking about it, " he said. "We're going to reap the benefits of working together with those organizations who have the same philosophy and forward-looking thinking as we do."

The board is entering 1995 committed to the goals of working with others to enhance marketing power and return more money to member-farmers, Gardner said.

Homestead Notes

A thankful Shankle family from Schellsburg stands together on the lawn of the big, old farmhouse that's more than 100 years old. They rejoice that God spared the life of Fred, second from left, who nearly died from methane gas in the high moisture corn silo. His son Michael is left, wife Susan, niece Tanya, brother Bruce Shankle behind his daughter; mother Elsie and father, Monroe Shankle. Daughter Amanda, 17, is absent because of a school event.

Family Rejoices When Dad Survives Cardiac Arrest From Silo Gas

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SCHELLSBURG (Bedford Co.) — "The Lord saved me. It wasn't my time. But this has to be told and brought out," said Fred Shankle. Shankle, though still emotional, was able, some seven weeks later to talk publicly about his near-death experience with insidious and odorless methane gas from high-moisture corn.

"Think before going into that silo!" he said. "Everybody has to respect that gas. Once it's got you, there's no turning back. People need to know that." A commercial seed dealer and vice-president of the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc., with headquarters in Somerset County, Shankle spoke about his traumatic experience.

The story begins on Wednesday, October 19. Business partners and brothers Fred and Bruce Shankle, who operate a 100-head Holstein dairy they had purchased in 1984 from their dad, Monroe, rose early. They were anxious to harvest more corn but to milk the cows first.

At 4:45 a.m., they entered the barn. By 6:45 a.m. they were ready to feed high-moisture corn from the partially filled silo to the hungry cows.

Three silos tower over the barn.

"We started the blower to blow the gas out. We always do that," said Fred, joined in the farm office by family members gathered for the interview. He is the elder brother by four years.

"The air was blowing down the chute fine, so we turned off the blower."

In the chute, Fred climbed with his hammer and shovel to the 15th of 27 doors in the silo. That's where, when beating on it with his hammer, he got a hollow ring in response. Readying his shovel, Fred opened door number 15.

"I popped open the door and it hit me," he recalls. "It was just like a light blanket came over me. I was never in it before. I held my breath, then hollered for Bruce to turn on the blower," said Fred.

"I had to go down 14 doors to the bottom of the chute. At door five, I felt a burning in my nose. At door six, I don't remember anything," he said, dabbing at his eyes. "I fell the last eight doors (approximately 20 feet).

"I got turned around in the chute with my feet above me," said the six foot, one-inch, man. "I was caught in the ladder."

An emotional Bruce enters the story. "I heard him yell and open the door and say 'turn the blower on.' I knew there was gas up there. I started the tractor to blow some more and got back to the chute. About 25 seconds had passed," said Bruce.

"I took the cone off the chute so I could let him down and he was cradled up there. His foot was caught. I knew I had to get him air."

So Bruce, at six foot, two inches tall, and 20 pounds lighter than Fred, managed to swiftly free his brother and lay him on the ground.

Fred's eyes were open but bloodshot. Bruce recalls his complexion was blue and Fred didn't respond to his questions. "I knew he was unconscious," he said.

"I took three or four seconds to ask God to please help me," he said.

With no prior training, except being a faithful viewer of the television show "Rescue 911," the desperate man began giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to his brother. After some minutes had elapsed, Fred's facial color began to improve and he moved his head a bit.

Bruce helped him to a sitting position. Still disoriented, Fred thought he was running the feeder. Gradually regaining his senses, and feeling no pain but soreness in legs from the fall, Fred assured Bruce he was OK.

Shaken to the core by the experience, the two sat and sobbed, but didn't call a doctor.

"We cried together a few minutes," Fred said.

Shortly thereafter, Fred was having breakfast at his own house, just up the road from the farm. His wife, Susan, , from her secretarial post, called 8:15 a.m., something she hadn't done for a few weeks.

She felt an urge to talk to Fred, to hear his plans for the day and just chat with him, she said.

"I could tell something was wrong. I asked, 'Fred, what's wrong?'" she said.

"He said, 'I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry. I've done something terrible.'"

Knowing her husband, Susan couldn't imagine he had done anything of the kind.

Over the telephone the account spilled out. They, too, cried, but Fred insisted he was OK. His assurances were convincing and Susan stayed at work until noon. However, a compelling need then found her leaving work for home.

Meanwhile, the brothers were occupied with repairing machinery when their dad returned from buying parts. Upon hearing the account, Monroe insisted that his son see a doctor. Fred refused. He was fine, he said.

At lunch, prepared by their mother, her sons confessed the story to Elsie and the family succumbed to more sobbing.

By late afternoon, Michael Shankle, Fred and Susan's 21-year old son, a University of Pittsburgh/Johnstown senior who's aspiring to become a future doctor, arrived home to attend an evening meeting.

As captain of the Shawnee Valley Ambulance Service, the four-year emergency medical technician was expected to participate in important discussions.

It was unusual, he thought, that his mother was home so early from work preparing dinner. Later, he was working at the table when his dad, looking positively ghastly, entered the room.

Michael was instantly alert. "He looked gray around the eyes and really sick. He reminded me of someone who had had a heart attack," he said. So he asked his dad if he felt well.

Unable to mask his emotions, Fred said, "You almost lost me today, and recounted to the astonished Michael what transpired during the morning scenario.

"After hearing he was blue and that Bruce had resuscitated him," said Michael, "I knew that gases remained in his system.

"I was flabbergasted that he hadn't gone to the doctor. I said, 'Dad, your heart could stop in the night,'" said Michael.

He pressured Fred to seek medical attention immediately. Fred obstinately refused, which lead them into a battle of wills.

Annoyed, Fred told Michael to sit down and eat.

The equally determined Michael announced that he wouldn't eat a thing until his dad saw the doctor.

At the time, Amanda, 17, the other family member, was at a banquet and oblivious to what was happening at home.

Fred finally agreed to see the doctor, a stand-in for their personal, vacationing physician. The doctor told Fred after the examination that his condition was the worst of the 70 patients he'd seen that day. It was the hospital for Fred, and now, ordered the doctor.

Fred hesitated. There were the cakes he'd bought on impulse, en route, waiting to be delivered to Bruce and his buddies over at the bowling alley — Bruce's birthday surprise and a token for saving Fred's life.

Not impressed, the doctor said to forget the cakes and get to the hospital.

The doctor said bluntly that without hospital care Fred would die in his sleep that very night. He said that the gases in his blood would continue to build while the life-giving oxygen would be squeezed out.

Scared at last, Fred went willingly into the highest level of care unit in the local hospital, about 18 miles from his home.

Next morning, Fred learned from the doctor that his heart had gone into full cardiac arrest. Evidence gathered from his blood samples that were tested and examined in the lab proved it.

Fred was released after the second night and after achieving a good report on the treadmill the next morning. His orders were to take it easy the next few days.

Miraculously, Fred's heart had no permanent damage but soreness from the awkward fall lingered in his legs.

The Shankles, who say they've always revered God and attended church, add that they have since found in themselves a new respect for life.

We respect life a little more now than we did, said Fred. "It made us realize how fragile life really is. You think it won't happen to you."

Fred, who regularly preaches silo caution everywhere he goes, admits the error was his. The distributor at the end of the pipe, instead of being down in, was sticking straight out, he explained, allowing the air to only blow across.

"It made me sick recently when I heard five big (successful) farmers say they didn't know (that high moisture corn produces deadly gas). It takes about 10 seconds to kill you," Fred said, re-emphasizing that the warnings must be spread to all farmers.

Monroe said, "If it (the silo) isn't full, it still has gas in it."

Only 12 hours had elapsed from when the men put the corn into the silo until Fred climbed the chute the following morning, they said.

The Shankle brothers and their father, proprietor of the land, cultivate some 600 acres, 333 of their own, to raise mostly corn and hay for their own feed.

Fred is also the vice-president of the Bedford County Farm Bureau and vice-president of the Shawnee Valley Fire Department's relief fund.

Fred Shankle and his wife Susan have a new respect for life and for each other since Fred nearly died recently, after being overcome by methane gas in the high-moisture corn silo.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Chicago's O'Hare airport is not where I'd go looking for Christmas.

It's a huge, sprawling complex of terminals, gates, runways, hangars, peoplemovers, and all sorts of shops to supply travelers' needs. Planes from all over the country and international locations land and take off there daily, moving folks to destinations everywhere but the moon.

Airports always remind me of anthills, with bodies purposefully scurrying in all directions. That's what O'Hare looked like one day a few weeks ago, as I waited in a super-crowded gate, enroute home from a meeting. Everyone in the country seemed to be flying that day — and half of 'em were trying to get on this particular flight.

Though I'd gotten my name on the stand-by list of this earlier flight, the likelihood of catching it looked nil. The waiting mob of passengers crowding the gate door was already so thick that airline personnel finally ordered them back to let the arriving ones through.

By the time the last passengers were boarding the plane and stand-by announcement began, the departure was already long past schedule. In fact, it was a mere half-hour until the next flight, on which I had a confirmed seat, was due to takeoff. But with everything backed up due to weather problems, schedules had become irrelevant.

Just when I'd about given up, my name was called. I warmly thanked the ticket agent, fled down the ramp before someone changed their mind, and almost leaped onto the plane. Even before I sat down, the door was being slammed shut. Halfway back, over the wing, my place was at a window; two accommodating fellow travelers moved so I could scramble into the seat.

But the runway was backed up. We waited. And waited. In the interim, the overhead televisions were tuned in for the evening news. After hearing the headlines, I fiddled with the headphone dial to see what else was on the air.

Suddenly, the lilting music of "Joy To The World" flooded through my ears, sounding so beautiful it nearly brought me to tears. In that moment, the fatigue from leaving home at 4 a.m., late arrival at the meeting due to morning flight delays, and concerns about weather affecting the return one immediately began to lift.

Strains of holiday classicals by Bach and Handel were followed by more traditional carols music. Christmas music, for me, is the ultimate in emotional restoration. Thoughts of the day began organizing themselves into the satisfaction of a successful meeting. I chuckled remembering the businessman I'd passed in a long terminal, striding purposefully with his briefcase, barking instructions into a cellular phone in his hand, and of the male traveler clad in a gaudy tie, bright-printed shirt and multi-colored jogging jacket.

Blinking red lights of the 20 aircraft ahead of us waiting for takeoff became reminiscent of the colorful lights of Christmas. And as our plane finally lifted off, lumbering up with a chocked full load of passengers and crammed overheads, a million lights of the city stretched across the horizon, highlighted with a reddish gold from the setting sun, and sparkling like strands of glimmering tinsel.

At this most unlikely spot and time, Christmas, for me, had begun.

Like busy travelers, running over each other in our haste, we sometimes get so caught up in the journey of holiday preparations that we forget the original purpose. May the real meaning of the season — peace and joy, hope and love — nudge aside this busy-ness, at least for a little while, and fill each of us with renewed appreciation and faith in the promises of Christmas.

From all of us here on the dairy farm — including cows, calves, cats, dog, chickens and assorted squirrels and birds — we wish you and yours a very Moooory Christmas!

MICROWAVING CAN HELP BUSY PEOPLE WITH BETTER NUTRITION

Although I like to do conventional cooking that warms up the kitchen on a cold day, those pots and pans produced take a lot of the enjoyment away. Time spent over the stove and sink could be spent with friends and family doing other activities like ice skating, reading, or craft projects.

Fortunately, a microwave oven can help to shorten the hours spent in food preparation and clean-up. Better nutrition for the family and lower electric utility bills can also be payoffs to microwave use.

Better Nutrition:

Lowfat foods cook easily in a microwave. Chicken cooks tender and juicy in a short time. Fish can be steamed or cooked until just the outer areas are done; the center will finish cooking as it stands. Fat added to recipes to prevent sticking to the pan can be omitted.

Vegetables, whether they are frozen, canned or fresh, are easy to cook in a microwave. A crisp-tender texture for cooked fresh or frozen vegetables can be reached by using the minimum cooking time recommended for a particular microwave.

Milk-based desserts like puddings and custards help supply the family's daily requirement for calcium. Microwaving makes them easy to prepare by eliminating much of the stirring.

Time for Microwaving:

The time required for microwaving of food depends on the temperature of the food before heating, the amount of food in the microwave oven at the time, the density of the food, and the power level (watts) used for microwaving. Small quantities of food usually cook in less time than larger quantities. (Two baked potatoes take twice as long as one)

Microwaves cause water, sugar, and fat molecules under the surface of the food to heat up. The heat is then transferred toward the center and back out to the surface of the food. Foods continue cooking while standing after they are microwaved, so 5 minutes of standing can be added on to the preparation time.

Tip for Microwaving:

Use microwave-safe utensils, glass or plastic.

Use a large enough container to prevent spillover.

Cheese and meat are foods that attract microwave energy and should be buried when possible, in sauce or other ingredients.

Milk-based foods boil more vigorously in microwave heating. Use a lower power setting and watch carefully or use a temperature control prove set to 180°F. Use a container that is double the size of the food.

Turn or stir foods once or twice during the microwave cooking time for more even cooking.

Set the time for 1/2 of the total cooking time needed; turn or rotate the food so the food formerly in the back is in the front. Reset to cook for the remainder of the cooking time.

Utensils For Microwaving:

Oven glassware and glass-ceramic.

Paper and styrofoam plates and cups.

Paper towels and napkins, wax paper.

Boilable hard and soft plastic.

Plastic wrap for covering dishes, cooking bags for cooking, plastic storage bags for heating at lower temperatures.

Straw and wood (for short term heating).

Boxes lined with paper or plastic, paper or plastic packages (be sure no foil-lined paper is used).

Note: Round containers heat more evenly than those with corners.

Do not use: Dishes with gold, silver, or metallic trim or glaze. Utensils with metal trim or parts. Metal pans, .metal skewers, or other metal.

Foods That Microwave Well

Vegetables (Pierce whole vegetables; for winter squash, take a plug out.)

Baked potato (Pierce with a fork before microwaving.)

Puddings and custards

Fruit desserts (Pierce skins of whole fruits.)

Foods to be defrosted

Scrambled eggs

Leftover foods to be reheated

Fish

Casseroles, soup

Chicken pieces (Skin will not be crispy.)

Foods That Do Not Microwave Well Or Are Cooked Less Efficiently By Microwave:

Large size foods like a 25-pound turkey or a dozen baked potatoes.

Eggs in shells and whole boiled eggs without shells

Deep fat frying of foods

Pancakes (unless reheating previously cooked pancakes)

Microwave Safety

Microwave ovens produce very short radio waves to heat food on the inside instead of the conventional heat transfer from oven air or from the bottom of a hot pan. The waves are invisible and can cause damage to hands, so microwave ovens have safety features to prevent release of waves while the door is open and to prevent leaking of waves from the door while closed. Safe operation of a microwave includes maintaining a clean seal around the door and avoiding its use it there is damage to the door or the seals.

Festive Bites And Sips

Entertaining seems to be at an all-time high between Christmas and New Year's Day. Maybe you only need something simple to serve to drop-in guests or perhaps you'd like something more elaborate for a buffet party.

Dairy princesses want to let people know how wonderfully nutritious treats can be made using dairy products. Providing calcium, protein, Vitamin D, and other nutrients dairy products become an essential part of our daily diets. Several dairy princesses have sent in recipes, which are printed below.

Remember family and friends are the focal points of these gatherings, but food fuels the fun. Here are some recipes from readers and our files to add a crowning touch to your entertaining needs.

SPLIT LEVELS

Chocolate filling:

1 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
3-ounces cream cheese
⅓ cup evaporated milk
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Crumb crust:

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
½ cup butter, softened
1 egg
¼ teaspoon vanilla

In saucepan combine chocolate pieces, cream cheese, and milk. (Soften cream cheese one minute in microwave before putting it in a saucepan). Melt over low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in remaining tilling ingredients. Blend well. Set aside.

In large mixer bowl, combine all ingredients. Blend well with mixer until particles are fine.

Press half of crumb crust mixture in greased 11x7-inch pan. Spread with filling. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over filling. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

Split Levels are great gifts. Put them on a tray or in a basket lined with a red or white napkin. Arrange the cookies in the tray or basket and cover with red or green plastic wrap. Decorate with ribbons and bows.

For 170 years, Baer's Agricultural Almanac and Gardener's Guide has offered all kinds of advice on farming and gardening, running households, holding husbands, caring for children, curing ills, and making all sorts of kitchen delicacies.

Now a 16-page volume reprint of recipes from prior issues of the almanac is available. In addition to old and new recipes, the booklet includes a discourse on "How to Cook a Husband." No doubt men of this era will envy the pampered lifestyle husbands receive from wives who follow the instructions, which were first printed in 1905.

For a copy of "Recipes Old and New" send $2 to John Baer's Sons, Box 328, Lancaster, PA 17608.

Here are two recipes printed exactly as they appear in the the booklet.

A DISH FOR FIVE STOUT MEN (1772)

To nine pints of water one pound of lean beef cut into very thin pieces, 1 pint of split peas, 12 ounces of mealy potatoes, 3 ounces of ground rice after it has boiled two hours — 3 large leeks + 2 head of celery — twill cost a shilling exclusive of firing.

BODDLE'S ORANGE FOOL

2 oranges
1 lemon
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ pint whipping cream
Lady fingers or sponge cake

Line bottom and sides of a shallow dish with ladyfingers or slices of sponge cake about ½ -inch thick. Grate the rinds of oranges and lemons. Squeeze the juice from the fruit. Mix rind, juice, and sugar, stirring well until dissolved. Whip the cream until thickened but not stiff. Slowly add juice, continuing to beat the cream until all is well amalgamated. Pour into dish and chill overnight in refrigerator. The juice and flavor will be absorbed by the sponge cake, and the cream mixture will set. Decorate with grated rind before serving. Serves 4.

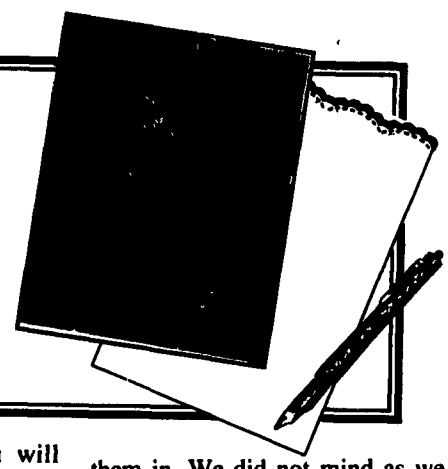
Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



This year most of you will receive your Lancaster Farming newspaper on Christmas eve or earlier in the day. I'm sure that many papers will lay unread as last minute preparations are being taken care of before bedtime.

Some folks open gifts Christmas eve while others have a tradition of doing it right after breakfast the 25th. Somehow, my mother was always so busy with seven girls that she never wrapped gifts. Her small presents were given in the brown bag that she purchased them in. We did not mind as we knew no better.

Recently, I attended a birthday party for two grandsons. Their pile of gifts was high and each box had beautiful paper which was simply ripped off in a hurry. Now I would have saved the biggest pieces to wrap other gifts in the future. In fact, I have a big plastic bag of used ribbons and bows. When I was in a store, I saw a bag just like mine for sale.

Our daughter in Texas tells me that she bought ingredients and will make 20 kinds of cookies. I'm not planning on putting more than 15 kinds in the boxes that I pack for my Amish neighbors. It is nice to visit and see how their children have grown. Our son, Philip, who lives on the dairy farm is attending an agricultural engineers meeting in Atlanta, Georgia for four days. This took some planning as he took his four-year-old son along and stopped in Virginia to visit his brother, Kenneth. Then on to Atlanta where he has a brother and sister to stay with and to care for his boy. While here on the farm his wife, Lisa, will have some 60 cows to milk and as many or more heifers to tend. My husband will help with feeding and bedding. My contribution to this effort is to care for one-year-old Gregory. Surely hope nothing breaks down with the farmer away.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 4

Wendy Lingle, president of Berks County Society of Farm Women, installed the new officers of Group 4 in the Hereford home of Virginia Taylor. They are president Virginia Taylor, vice president Barbara Shanes, treasurer Georgeanna Fullerton, and secretary Ferne Kulp.

A copy of the proposed changes in the by-laws to be acted on at the State convention in Harrisburg was given to each member.

A Christmas quiz, gift exchange and caroling was enjoyed by all.

The next meeting January 3 will be at the home of Charlotte Mauger, Bechtelsville.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like a recipe for pancake syrup that is light in calories.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., remembers that her mother made herb seasoned stuffing with onions, celery, etc., which was formed into balls and baked. They were really crunchy on the outside and soft on the inside. Louise thinks it is a German recipe that was passed down through the family but never written. Every Thanksgiving and Christmas her mother made them and lots of little fingers picked them out of the pan before dinner was ready, she writes.

QUESTION — I.M. Filler, Brookfield, Mass., would like a recipe for stuffed pumpkin or as one friend called it, Poor Man's Turkey. She thinks it is an old New England recipe.

QUESTION — Sherry Craner of Bridgeton, N.J., would like the recipe for the best meatloaf.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for raise cakes that her grandmother made years ago. She knows the cakes contained yeast, mashed potatoes, and had a sugar glaze on top. The cakes were always made in a single layer in cake pans.

QUESTION — Jean Nestler, Halifax, would like a recipe for lime gelatin and cottage cheese salad that was served at the Harvest House Restaurant in Colonial Park during the early 1970s.

QUESTION — Anne Wiegle, Pottstown, would like a recipe for pickled herring. She wrote that years ago, her family made it by cleaning, splitting, and deheading the herring. The fish was salted and packed in barrels. The fish juice leaked out and formed the brine. She needs to know the ratio of salt to pounds of fish.

QUESTION — Velma Winters, Manheim, would like a recipe for baked potato soup.

QUESTION — Linda Fisher, Ronks, would like a recipe for salsa, either hot or mild.

QUESTION — Anna Lehman, Hershey, would like a recipe for black walnut chipper cake.

QUESTION — Rosemary Mattiuz, Kersey, wants a recipe for liverwurst. The family butchers their own pigs and has lots of liver to use.

QUESTION — Ruth Best, Newburg, wants recipes for diabetic jams and jellies of several different fruit flavors.

QUESTION — A York County reader would like a recipe for fresh coconut cake using a boxed cake mix.

QUESTION — Anne Crist, Airville, would like a recipe to make root beer in a gallon jar. Yeast and root beer syrup is added and left set in the sun for a day. Anne previously used this recipe and her family loved it, but she misplaced the recipe.

QUESTION — Betty Evans, Pequea, has been looking for years for an old recipe for roll-out sugar cookies that are soft and look like they rise during baking. When cool, the cookies are frosted.

QUESTION — Ruth Ann Burke, York, would like a recipe for Firehouse Potato Soup. She had clipped it from this paper several years ago and her family really liked it. Recently, her daughter requested it, but the recipe has been mislaid. Did anyone else clip the recipe?

QUESTION — Becky Shires, Oxford, would like a recipe for lemon meringue cake. She had a piece at Miller's Smorgasbord near Lancaster recently. The layer cake had a filling between layers and pecans on the outside.

As I set up my nativity pieces this year, I was really excited. Last year my Dad made me a stable from pieces of old barn wood, and then for my birthday, my parents gave me an angel and camels to supplement the few figurines that I had before. It was wonderful. I kept saying to my husband, "I really like my nativity set." In fact, I think I said it at least one too many times.

That stable is just one of the wonderful gifts that my Dad has given me over the years. He made me a picture frame for a Renoir print, gave me a toolbox and tools when I moved into my first apartment, bought me jumper cables when I took a car to college, gave me a key to our family's hunting cabin, and more. Each of these was a special gift — a gift selected with me specifically in mind.

As special as these were, these were not the most important gifts my Dad gave to me. The most important things he gave me were his time when he came to track meets and voice recitals, his affection, his belief in my ability to succeed, his example of being responsible and true to his word, his integrity and ethics as an example to me, his attention in individual conversations.

Dads, you have so many important gifts to give your children! After the bicycles, video games, puzzles, and dolls are unwrapped, and the holiday fervor starts to disappear, take some time to think about the "free" gifts you can give your kids throughout the year.

Here's a "shopping list" to get you started:

Time — Psychiatrists · Comer and Poussaint talk about the role of a father in a child's life, "You should try to be present during important occasions, such as birthdays, meetings with teachers...Setting aside certain times for doing things together, such as attending ball games or picnics is important...more important than being an ever- present 'dud'. "

Affection — Hugs and other healthy affection are critical for every child's development of self-esteem and identity. Both sons and daughters need this gift throughout the year. If a child does not receive healthy affection in her home, she may seek other ways of gaining that attention and acceptance.

Structure and Limits—Comer and Poussaint also encourage fathers to listen to their kids, to be reliable, warm, firm but flexible, confident, and reasonable. Research has shown that parents need to balance warmth and nurturing with structure and limits. Without structure and limits, children tend to be selfish and self-centered. Dads play a role in providing both nurturing and limits. Structure and limits should change as children mature. But even in the teen years, structure and limits are gifts you can give your children. (They may not thank you, but know that they are gifts just the same.)

Permission to Grow Up at Their Own Rate — By pushing kids to "hurry and grow up," parents often force kids to shut out feelings. Children who are rushed may act out in anger. They usually stay very busy. Dads, encourage your children to be unique. Tell them, "I like you just the way you are. You're you and you're special to me."

The Example of Being a Loving Husband—Children learn much of what they know by observing. Your example to them of how to love a partner and how to be respectful of that relationship gives an example that your sons and daughters will carry with them and model as they develop their own relationships. Robert Bly explains that if boys don't spend enough time with their dads or other male role models, they won't have a clear idea about what it means to be a male parent/husband. In a day when relationships are fragile, give your children the gift of a healthy marriage. Ask yourself, "What are the important lessons about being a man and a dad that I want to pass on to my children?"

Skills and Hobbies — At a recent workshop, the presenter asked, "Who likes to hunt or fish?" As people raised their hands, he asked who taught them that skill. The replies—my dad, my grandad, my neighbor, my uncle. Dads, share your interests with your kids. Years from now they will still treasure that gift from you.

Love of Life — Give your kids an enthusiasm for life. Laugh, play, enjoy the days as they present themselves.

Remember, not just during the holidays, but all year long, dads have an important role to play in a child's life. Be proud of the gifts you give your kids each day. They are gifts that will last long after the tinsel and paper are gone.

Christmas Is Love, Peace, Programs, Fun, And Surprises

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

Oh! Today is Christmas Eve. Christmas is here at last and I can't wait to rip open my presents. I'll bet most of you kids feel that way, too, after all the waiting.

Now you can finally forget those parts that you learned and recited at school and church programs. Your teachers and parents made you memorize for weeks, didn't they? Did you goof up anyway and forget your lines?

Let's see, some of you played angels. Others acted as wise men and shepherds tending their sheep. Lots of you were a Mary, or a Joseph, around the manger of Baby Jesus.

Dressing as those characters was a big deal, right? Moms and grandmas dug out dark turkish towels from the linen closet to wrap around your head. The striped bathrobes that turned you into a fine shepherd, probably belonged to your dad, your grandpa, or perhaps, the director's husband.

And safety pins were handy for holding you together on the stage, so the audience didn't know you were ready to fall apart (this often happens with grownups' clothes). Lots of good deeds are done at Christmas. I think we try harder at Christmas time to make other people happy, don't you? Even kids try hard to be more kind at Christmas.

For instance, we give presents

The Junior Youth Fellowship from the Springs Mennonite Church has a table full of fruit boxes to deliver to twelve area homes. The kids learn that giving to others brings happiness to our hearts, especially at Christmas.

Guess Who Is New On The Farm Coloring Contest?

COLUMBIA (Lancaster Co.)— Almost everyone who reads this paper knows that cows, chickens, sheep, and steers are raised on the farm. But not too many people know much about the hundreds of emu that are becoming popular on the farm.

To teach people more about emu, the Eastern Regional Emu Chapter is sponsoring a coloring contest for children ages 1-12.

Color the picture of the emu chick that is hatching from the egg. After coloring the picture, take it to the Pennsylvania Farm Show where the Emu Booth is located on the second floor of the Northeast Building Family Center. Deposit your colored picture in the box. Make sure your name, age, address, and phone number are written on the picture.

In case you forget, a coloring area with supplies provided will be available at the booth.

All entries will be displayed at the booth before the drawing. Also, each one who brings an entry to the booth will receive a free coloring book about the emu.

Lura Folk, Springs, is 96 because she was born in 1898. On her lap is a fruit basket that local kids gave her for Christmas. The kids belonged to a church group.

Friends, Kevin Beitzel, left, and Ben Heatwole, are doing what lots of kids will do tomorrow, Christmas Day. They are trying out the sleds on snowy slopes in Springs, Somerset County.

Christmas Is Love,

or money and food to needy families. Oh, yes, and toys. And warm mittens, so they can be cozy while sledding and ice skating.

Christmas trees are pretty important, too. There's something so exciting about a tree with twinkling lights that makes an adventure of opening presents.

We feel all warm and fuzzy inside. We hope that everybody in the world is happy and loved.

That's why Jesus came. God sent him as a gift so that boys and girls and men and women could learn about love. That's what the Bible tells us.

This kind of love helps us to be less selfish. We learn that love can be fun.

Some kids in my community made fruit baskets to take to special people in the area. When they delivered the fruit, the kids stayed for a few minutes and sang Christmas carols to the person getting the basket.

One woman they visited is 96 years old. Her name is Lura Folk. She was born in 1898, when William McKinley was president of the United States, near the end of the 19th Century.

Mrs. Folk was very polite to the kids and thanked them for bringing her a gift. She said she liked their singing.

I'm sure you kids have done hundreds of nice things for people in your community, just to show you have the Christmas spirit.

And now, because you are great kids, I say you deserve a very Merry Christmas! I warn you, in just a few hours I expect you to tear open those gifts as fast as you can (first, make sure your own name is on the tag).

DON'T DAWDLE!!! HAVE A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Meyers Home Aglow With Christmas Spirit

ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.) — The Meyer family of Annville loves the sights, smells, and tastes associated with Christmas.

Lois Meyer begins baking and decorating early for her husband James and children, Brian, 23; Kevin, 21; Stephanie, 17; and Holly, 12.

Red bows are attached to the sled, the doors, windows, fences, lights are strung, and the train set is arranged beneath the perfectly coiled tree to which favorite ornaments from years past have been attached.

This gingerbread farm is a project completed by Lois with the help of Stephanie and Holly.

Scents of 100 varieties of cookies, spicy gingerbread houses, and home-cured hams mingle throughout the house. But those aromas are not limited to the holiday season.

Holly arranges the figurines beneath the creche that her mother built from orange crates.

"We eat good around here," said Meyers as he mentions eating steak several times a week, meat puddings, scrapple, homemade sticky buns....

"Don't forget shoo fly pie," Kevin interjects. "I have yet to find a place that makes shoo fly pie as good as my mom's."

His father chuckles and adds, "That's why our boys will never leave. They eat too good around here. Where will they ever find a girl that can cook as good as Mom?"

The Meyer daughters are learning to cook almost as good as Angels hover in the rafters above the manger scene during the reinactment of the first Christmas. The reinactment was held four times at Fred and Julie Heller's farm in Lititz last weekend.

Farm Attracts Crowds For Nativity Reinactment

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Hundreds of people followed the brightly shining star to the Fred Heller farm last weekend. The 10-foot diameter star teetered 140 feet above the farm.

Like the star that drew the wise men to the manger where the baby lay, this star too was used to draw crowds to a reinactment of the baby's birth. Only this star did not appear in the heavens but was lifted by a crane.

Fred and Julie Heller's 17-year-old son Dan directed a camel, a donkey, sheep, goats, a calf, and a caste of actors in a real-life reinactment of the story of the origin of Christmas.

Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador Michele Stauffer narrated the nativity play from the haymow, which was used as a stage.

Hay was scattered over an area of the barn where the six goats, three sheep, two turkeys, and a calf mingled next to the manger. Joseph Martin played the part of Joseph as he brought his wife Mary played by Holly Hurst, on a donkey to the shelter of the barn.

Angels, played by Zonya Zimmerman and Chad Shirk, hovered in the rafters above the manger.

The barn doors opened so that the crowd could see the shepherds and sheep walking down the hillside to visit the newborn child. Three wisemen guided a gangly camel, named Job, down the hillside to the site.

Six musical groups sang Christmas carols while children in the audience joined the animals in the hay for an on-the-spot petting zoo.

Dan said that he thought of the idea for the play while working for Paul and Brenda Zimmerman, who own Hammercreek Exotics in Lititz. The Zimmermans lent the camel and other animals for the reinactment.

The rustic barn was an ideal site for the play. Built in 1817, the barn was used for storage until Dan got the idea to use it for the Hammer Creek Mennonite Church Youth's play.

Youth from the church helped the Heller family clear the barn. A blower was used to remove the cobwebs and plenty of volunteer sweeping power was donated by youth and family members.

The youth agreed that the work was worth it. "It was fun working together, but to see the people's reaction was the best part," Dan said.

The wisemen lead Job the camel down the hillside to the barn during the Christmas play. The wisemen, from left, are Dan Heller, who also directed the play, Rod Weber, and Mike Stoltzfus.

Meyers Home Aglow

Mom, who believes in teaching children early to cook. A few years ago, she purchased two loose-leaf cookbooks for her daughters. The girls copy favorite family recipes and lend a hand in the kitchen so that they can learn to cook just like Mom.

"The problem is Mom doesn't have a recipe for a lot of stuff," Stephanie said of her mother's reputation as a "dash of this and a lump of that" cook. "We have yet to figure out how she makes barbecue."

Writing down recipes is allocated not only to the girls in the kitchen. The boys are learning their share of recipes too. For the family's annual butchering of two beef and seven pigs, recipes for homemade bolonga, scrapple, and home-cured ham must be carefully calculated.

"If those recipes aren't written down, and someone dies, the recipes are lost forever," Meyer said.

"The butchering takes five days to complete, because we butcher in between milking," Meyer said.

In years past, the butchering was always done during the week between Christmas and New Year's. "But that always cut the enjoyment of Christmas," Meyer said. This year the family butchered at the beginning of December.

"Now we can really enjoy Christmas," he said.

Butchering requires several family members to arise at 3:30 a.m. While several milk the cows, others butcher. The butchering requires sawing meat, grinding it for hamburger and bolonga, and endless wrapping.

"It's a job we both enjoy and dread," Stephanie said. "Because we want to eat good, we do it."

Two large-sized freezers are filled to the brim, one with meat and the other with produce from the garden.

The family farms in partnership with Meyer's parents, Marvin and Betty, and a brother Clyde and his wife Carolyn.

The three families own 300 acres and rent another 100 for raising corn, alfalfa, and soybeans. But their primary focus is milking 140 cows, which requires five to six persons help for each milking since a 68-stall barn is used for the 140 cows.

Stephanie is often asked why she doesn't run for dairy princess. Her standard answer is, "I'm too busy working on the farm."

It's her job to help with evening milking.

In addition to the milking cows, the Meyers have about 140 replacement heifers and the girls raise pigs for their 4-H project.

The Meyers live on a farm with a barn that dates back to 1857. Although it's not the original, the house was built in 1864. "It costs $8,000 to build back then," Meyers said of the brick homestead that has been in the family since it was built.

Helping on the farm, housework, and working part time as receptionist for a law firm doesn't occupy all of Lois's time.

She said, "Give me a sewing machine and material and I'm happy."

(Turn to Page B15)

Her sewing and quilting projects are visible throughout the house. But she also sells quilts, wall hangings, and stuffed animals. She takes her projects to one craft sale a year and from that gets enough orders to keep her busy all year.

She also paints wooden items, crochets, knits, needlepoints, and does scherenschnitte.

"I like new challenges. I'll try anything — it's the only way to learn," Lois said of her multi-abilities. "When I was growing up at home, we didn't have a lot. So I learned to do with what we had."

Lois saves everything. "I don't throw anything away," she said of her perchance to find a new use for an item.

One of these uses was building a creche from wooden fruit boxes.

Although she likes to do new things, Lois also finds nostalgia in bygone days.

"When we were growing up, the only drinking glasses we ever had were the ones we got free with peanut butter," she said.

Lois has purchased a set of peanut butter glasses for each of the children.

"I want them to remember some of the past, not that they have to live it, but I want them to remember it," said Lois, who believes that much can be gained through generational relationships.

She grew up in a home where both grandparents and a great aunt lived with the family. She recalls many happy hours learning to quilt and crochet when she was in second grade.

For a few years, a grandparent also lived with the Meyers. "He and Holly were inseparable," Lois said.

"When he died, I cried for days," Holly said. But she considers that the happy memories with a grandparent outweights the eventual sorrow felt at death.

Appreciation is also learned through helping others. Last summer, Stephanie spent several weeks in Kentucky helping her church group shingle roofs in Appalachia.

"I came home appreciating mother's cooking even more," she said.

That appreciation was extended to almost every area of life. "It's hard to believe people living in the U.S. are so poor," she said.

After Brian received the FFA American Degree, he spent several weeks in Japan as an exchange student. In Japan, everything is scaled for shorter people and Brian's head touched the ceilings inside the home and the beds weren't long enough for his lanky frame.

Farming operations are much smaller in Japan and usually are used to grow eggplants and other vegetables. Brian could barely tolerate the thick milk that was served and was never able to figure out exactly why it was thick.

The family reciprocated the Japan exchange while hosting a student last year. The family enjoyed the exchange although they said sign language was used almost extensively since the student understood very little English.

Although working on the farm sometimes means foregoing activities with their friends, the siblings say that they believe farm work has taught them responsibility.

"As soon as I could hold a pitch fork, I was working," Kevin said.

"But he sure liked being able to buy a new truck," his dad said.

The money the siblings earned from 4-H projects is always saved and given to the child at high school graduation.

"Sometimes we complained about not being able to spend any of it at the time, but now we're glad," said Stephanie, who is already trying to decide which car to buy with her earnings.

During the holiday season, Lois and her daughters enjoy making gingerbread houses. Every year they make a different style. This year, they made a house and barn. According to Lois, the secret to successful gingerbread houses is letting the gingerbread harden for several days before assembling the pieces.

Her pointers helped Stephanie's FHA group win four ribbons in a gingerbread competition held in November.

Over the years, each ornament the children made at school, 4-H, church, or home has been kept and attached to one of the two trees the family erects. Lois also either makes or buys a new ornament each year. Four wooden bears carrying the name of each of the Meyers' children are climbing the ladder propped against the tree. Lois stitched and appliqued a Noah's Ark pattern for the tree skirt.

The Meyer family live on a farm that has been in the Meyer family at least since 1857, when the barn in the background was built.

"When the children leave home, their ornaments will go with them," Lois said.

Cookies are never made by a single batch in the Meyer household. "I always double or triple batches to make at least 10 to 12 varieties," Lois said.

Cookies do not last long around the household, and it is reported that neither does cookie dough. More than once, Lois went to the refrigerator to retrieve some previously mixed cookie dough only to find some family members prefer to eat dough rather than wait for the baked product.

"We are just a typical family. We have our squabbles just like normal families," Lois maintains.

"But we talk things out. And, we do everything together," Stephanie said.

Doing things together includes active participation in church activities.

"Church is a major part of our lives," Lois said. "I can't imagine family life without that."

Lois considers it worthwhile that she was home full-time when the children were younger. She continues to devote most of her time to the home. She is president of Lebanon Farm Women Society 13.

"I don't get involved in to much else other than the missionary society at church and Farm Women," she said.

As if December isn't busy enough with Christmas celebrations, three family members also have birthdays. The family sometimes celebrates the December birthdays in July so that the birthday celebration isn't lumped together with Christmas.

Stephanie is a member of Future Business Leaders of America and is president of the Future Homemakers of America at school. She was a teen leader for 4-H cake decorating. She is on the church volleyball team, attends a weekly Bible study, and youth group. She is undecided what she will do when she graduates in the spring. It's a toss-up between studying childcare or preparing to be a medical transcriptionist at the local vocational technical school.

Kevin has farmed full-time in the family partnership since he was graduated from high school. Rodney, who loves farming, works for Wenger's Farm Machinery but helps out with some of the farming responsibilities.

"We lead a hectic time schedule. This is the longest I've ever sat down," Meyer said of the interviewing process for this article.

Abundant Acorns Mean Good Year For Wildlife

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — To Pennsylvania's human population, this year's abundant acorn crop means more debris to sweep off the sidewalk. To the state's wildlife, however, lots of acorns on the ground spells good fortune, according to a wildlife expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Across the United States, almost 100 animal species rely on acorns as a major food source," says Richard Yahner, professor of wildlife conservation. "In Pennsylvania, at least 20 to 25 species use acorns as a major source of food."

Yahner says a variety of factors can account for a bountiful acorn crop. Some oak species drop acorns every year, while other species develop acorns every two years. Abundant moisture as well as drought conditions also can affect the number of acorns produced in a season.

"In low crop years, the birthrate for some species of wildlife, such as gray squirrels, will decline the following year," Yahner says. "Because of the increased competition for food, some species will have a tough time.

"This year's crop means that more young are likely to be produced by the animals that forage for food," Yahner adds.

Acorns are available to wildlife for a relatively short period during the fall, requiring each species to develop specific methods to take advantage of the crop. Acorns, which are highly digestible and rich in carbohydrates, serve a wide range of animals in a variety of ways.

Bears and deer, for instance, eat acorns to put on a layer of fat which sustains the bear through its hibernation and helps the deer make it through severe winter conditions. Such animals as squirrels, chipmunks, blue jays and forest mice store acorns in caches and burrows or by burying them.

"The public tends to think of squirrels and chipmunks as the big consumers of acorns," Yahner says. "In fact, some studies have shown they are not even in the top three."

Yahner cites a School of Forest Resources study by graduate student Colleen DeLong that found that the white-footed mouse, a forest-dwelling rodent, consumed more than 90 percent of the acorn crop on a few sites in central Pennsylvania. He also points out that an insect pest, the acorn weevil, can infest up to 50 percent of an acorn crop.

Wildlife plays a big part in forest regeneration, Yahner says. Squirrels can bury hundreds of acorns, at least some of which will take root. "Acorns drop like marbles out of the tree and many animals help distribute these seeds in the forest," he says. "Squirrels and other wildlife are crucial to oak regeneration."

LEADERSHIP AT WORK

Video Teaches Teens That Low-Fat Diets Include Meats

CHICAGO—Don't switch that dial. A new educational video developed by the National Live Stock and Meat Board is targeting teens with the message that a balanced diet and regular exercise are the keys to healthy lifestyles. The goal of the checkoff-funded video kit, called MVE-TV: The Channel for Moderation, Variety and Exercise, is to teach adolescents in a humorous, engaging way that a low-fat diet can include meat, which is often wrongly perceived to be high in fat.

MVE-TV was developed, in part, because of findings from a series of Youth Attitude Studies conducted over the past two years for the Meat Board by BruskinGoldring. When asked what, if anything, was the biggest drawback to eating meat, a large number of adolescent respondents said meat was "too fattening." On the positive side, teens recognized meat's nutrient value and great taste.

"We need to address the concern about fat, but we didn't want to do it in a heavy-handed way," explained Suzanne McGough, M.S., R.D., school programs coordinator for the Meat Board.

The video is comprised of several vignettes, each focusing on a different aspect of nutrition and fitness. There's a takeoff from a heavily watched teen soap opera, in which a brooding teenage character ponders the fat content of a beef fajita. Other scenes are based on popular daytime talk shows and game shows, complete with audience bantering.

Intended for junior and senior high school health teachers, the video program also includes a leader's guide with nutrition and exercise lesson plans. The guide details general nutrition principles and provides at least nine activities that educators can use in the classroom to complement the video.

This fall, the MVE-TV video kit and leader's guide was mailed to more than 3,500 health teachers across the U.S. As with all other Meat Board education programs, the kit was extensively reviewed by educators throughout its development to ensure its accuracy and usefulness for teachers. Several teachers also served as contributing authors of the print materials.

Bird Feeding Info

RUTGERS, N.J. — If you feed wild birds, as do one of three households in the U.S. according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, then you may be interested in some information from a past issue of Audubon Action, a publication of the National Audubon Society.

Do wild birds need to be fed in winter? No. Backyard food is a diet supplement. The biggest benefit of feeding wild birds is to the person doing the feeding; birds are attracted to where they can be observed. "If all feeding were to stop overnight there would probably be no noticeable effect on wild bird populations."

When should I start and stop feeding birds? There is no reason to limit bird feeding. Backyard food supplies do not significantly interfere with birds normal behavior (e.g. long-distance migration). Feeding in all seasons with appropriate food will bring a larger variety of birds to view.

Can you feed intermittently? Birds react to exhausted food supplies, whether from trees, weeds, etc. or from feeders, by moving on. "Most birds feed in mixed feeding flocks that forage over at least several acres in winter. Backyard feeder birds are usually quick to move to a neighbors feeders if your food supply becomes exhausted."

Is it okay to feed birds bread? Yes, except for moldy bread. A common bread mold, Aspirgillasis fumigatus, causes a deadly bird disease.

What type of seed is best? Sunflower seeds attract chickadees, titmice, evening grosbeaks and at least 40 other species." For ground feeders, white millet and fine cracked corn are preferred.

What about when it snows? This is probably when backyard feeding is most valuable. Food must be supplied in feeders that keep the food available and dry.

Applications Available For Governor's Schools

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An opportunity to spend an adventurous summer on a college campus awaits Pennsylvania's high school sophomores and juniors.

For those with interests in the creative and performing arts, the discrete sciences, the environment, the agricultural and life sciences, foreign languages, international affairs, economics, or the worlds of teaching and the health care, the Pennsylvania Department of Education offers six different full-scholarship, five-week long, residential programs that provide an exciting living/learning experience which past participants have called "the best time of their lives."

Applications for the 1995 Pennsylvania Governor's Schools of Excellence are available in all public and private secondary schools. The programs are: The Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences at the University Park campus of the Pennsylvania State University; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Arts at Mercyhurst College, in Erie; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for Health Care, which is funded by the state Department of Health, Pennsylvania Blue Cross/Blue Shield, and The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania, and is held at the University of Pittsburgh; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for International Studies at the University of Pittsburgh; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Sciences at Carnegie Mellon University, in Pittsburgh; and The Pennsylvania Governor's School for Teaching at Millersville University, in Lancaster County.

Alumni have praised the Governor's Schools for offering the opportunity to interact with educators who are practitioners in their fields. Working with the cutting edge of technology and the newest research in every field is another highlight. Best of all is the experience of living and working alongside peers from across the state who share similar interests and the desire to learn and stretch.

Tuition, room, board, classroom materials, and all program activities are provided to students who are selected to participate in the Governor's Schools. Graduates of the Governor's Schools of Excellence are eligible for merit scholarships set aside by many of the commonwealth's state and private colleges and universities. Additionally, the Bell Atlantic Corporation awards merit scholarships to Governor's School alumni whose leadership activities benefit their home schools and communities.

Eligibility for the Schools of Excellence is restricted to students whose parents' or legal guardians' full-time residential address of record is in Pennsylvania. Furthermore, applicants must be currently assigned to the grade level specified by each program. Applicants may not have previously attended a Pennsylvania Governor's School of Excellence, and they may only apply to two programs in a given year. Students who accept an invitation to attend the programs must commit to the full five-week, seven-days-a-week experience.

Students can learn more about the Governor's Schools in the brochure that is available with each application. Guidance offices or teachers should have these materials.

A Governor's Schools Hotline is available on weekdays for those who may have questions about the application process, at (717) 524-5244.

Piecing Together History

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania German patterns of patchwork will please visitors of the Hershey Museum through January 2. A variety of quilts dating from between 1850 and 1940 make up the "Quilt Family Album" exhibition. Also included in this special display are photographs of North and South Annville Townships, Lebanon County taken from glass-plate negatives, a treadle sewing machine, a quilting frame, and quilting templates and patterns.

The quilts in the exhibit were chosen from a collection of more than 30 heirloom bedcoverings belonging to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kenneth Rohland of Cleona, Lebanon County. They were made by women from the Wengert, Bomberger, Steinmetz, Ulrich, Kettering and Light families of Lebanon County and passed down from generation to generation by members of Mrs. Arlene Bomberger Rohland's family.

Quilts and their stories were traditionally passed from mother to daughter or daughter-in-law. Each quilt had its own story of a mother, aunt, or grandmother who had made it, and in this way, the women's history was preserved.

However, even through the quilts have all endured, some of the stories have been lost. The tradition of transferring the histories orally was broken when two young mothers' untimely deaths prevented them from passing the family stories to their infant daughters.

What has been learned about the collection was gleaned from family Bibles and papers, published genealogical studies, U.S. Census schedules, oral interviews, old photographs, and the quilts themselves, some of which have embroidered initials and dates.

The women who produced these quilts were all farm wives and mothers. They were responsible not only for much productive labor in the household, dairy and garden, but also for the physical, emotional and spiritually nurturing of their children. Many women also contributed to the family's income through the making and selling of butter. Income from butter-making was probably used to purchase the factory-produced textiles used in many of the quilts, as well as other commodities needed by the family throughout the year.

Farm women developed and managed this cottage industry. They were responsible for every stage of production, from milking the cows and churning the butter to driving the wagons to market and selling their product.

Because butter-making provided a stable income, it took time away from the production of hand-sewn textile products. Families depended more on store-bought commodities as their buttermaking capabilities increased.

With the advent of the sewing machine, however, production time for homemade textiles was reduced. By April of 1880, Philadelphia merchants were advertising a Singer Home Sewing Machine with a cover and stand for $20. When the machines were first introduced, they were used only to combat the "drudgery" of quiltmaking. They were used for long, straight seams to set blocks into sashing, to attach borders to edges, and to piece whole-cloth tops and backing together, as well, although no quilts in this collection display the use of machine-stitching for applique work.

The exhibit can be viewed daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Access to the exhibit is free with museum admission. Adults $4, $3.50 senior citizens, $1.75 youth (ages 3-15). Group rates are available. For more information call (717) 534-3439.

Fresh Greenery, Heirlooms Set Festive Holiday Table

Let these ideas spark your own imagination and creativity for presenting holiday foods!

• Line tins or wicker baskets with antique lace napkins or tea towels. Add freshly baked muffins or breads and top with a sprig of baby's breath. Tuck in a ramekin of flavored butter.

• Bring added warmth and color to a holiday spread. Cover a buffet table with a star quilt sprayed with a protective fabric coating to guard against spills.

• Holiday cookie cutters or small grapevine wreathes can double as napkin rings at individual place settings. A simple bow tied through each one will add a festive touch.

• Create a centerpiece all your own. Stack an heirloom cake pedestal with miniature pumpkins, squashes, gourds, pomegranates and dried artichokes. Tuck small twigs, dried leaves or fresh sprigs of fragrant herbs between the vegetables and fruits.

• An array of glass candlesticks of differing heights makes an interesting centerpiece. Add fresh flowers, fall foliage or Christmas greenery at the base. Be careful to place decorations away from burning candles.

• Spray the tips of pine cones lightly with gold paint. Scatter them among holiday offerings on a buffet table.

• Unusual containers such as an antique fan-shaped vase can be used for serving sauces, fruit preserves or whipped cream.

• Dress up a pitcher of eggnog or sparkling apple cider by adding a few fresh or silk flowers. Tie the flowers to the handle or bottle with a piece of decorative twine or ribbon.

• Garnish holiday fare with edible seasonal flowers or fresh herbs such as thyme, rosemary or purple basil. Butter pats look especially festive adorned with a tiny blossom or sprig.

• Dress up the base of a holiday cake. Wrap shimmering ribbon around the bottom and tie in a simple bow. Add a shiny ornament or holly sprig for the finishing touch.

• Place wedges of assorted cheese on fresh lemon or grape leaves. Accompany with clusters of grapes, apple slices and chutney.

• Weave holiday ribbons through a grapevine wreath and nestle a favorite holiday cake, such as buttery cranberry pound cake, in the center.

• Warm up guests with a mug of hot mulled cider. Float clove-spiked apples in a large earthenware bowl or crock filled with the warm cider.

• For a touch of spice, sprinkle sweetened whipped cream with ground cinnamon, nutmeg or allspice—a great topper for eggnog, hot chocolate or coffee.

• Cover boxes or coffee cans with decorative paper or twine and line with colored tissue, cellophane or foil. Tuck favorite butter cookies inside and tie with a pretty plaid ribbon.

• Decorate a tree with edible ornaments. When baking cut-out cookies, poke a hole near the top with a drinking straw. Bake and decorate as desired. Thread a narrow ribbon through the hole and tie a knot at the end.

• No time to frost a single layer cake or brownies? Place a doily on top of the cake. Sprinkle confectioners' sugar over the top and carefully remove the doily to reveal the pattern.

• A large, buttery shortbread cookie can become the centerpiece for a holiday dessert table. Bake dough in a round cake pan, cool and place on a decorated round plate. Tie a ribbon around plate for a festive look.

• Make a simple buttercream frosting and spread between two butter cookies to form a sandwich cookie. If desired, roll edges in finely chopped nuts, grated semi-sweet chocolate or colored sugar.

• Quick Buttercream—Combine 2 cups confectioners' sugar and 3 tablespoons softened butter. Add milk or cream, 1 tablespoon at a time, to reach desired consistency for spreading or glazing. Stir in extract and/or food coloring, if desired.

Christmas Thoughts

Let us keep Christmas, its meaning never ends ...the time of year to wish happiness and good will to friends and loved ones, near and far...the time to share the joys of the past and the hopes of the future, and to remember all we have to be thankful for. If we can do this for a day, why not forever? Let us keep the true spirit of Christmas. Today, tomorrow and always.

Merry Christmas

Legend of the Cattle

It is in the cows' manger that the Infant Jesus was laid, and a legend tells that on Christmas Eve cattle kneel in adoration, and are given the power of speech.
It is also thought that the cow in the stable breathed on the Baby to keep Him warm.

The HI-LO Pan Feeder
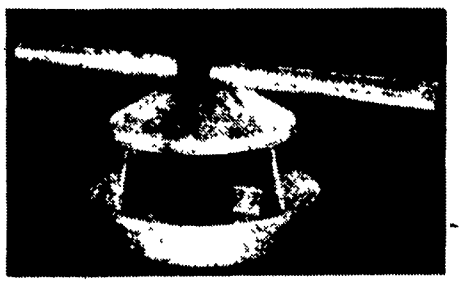
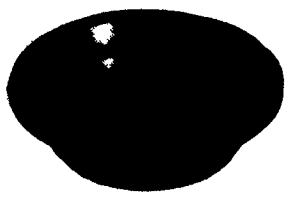
A Two Stage Pan



SIMPLY THE LEADER
Cumberland continues being the leader in the manufacturing of poultry equipment by introducing a turkey feeding system for every application. Cumberland's Turkey Feeders have revolutionary features which make them both profitable and easy to maintain for the end customer. Cumberland Feeders deliver feed economically, efficiently, and dependably with savings for the grower. The Cumberland Turkey Pan Feeding System offers a poult turkey pan for young turkeys and two models of adult turkey pans, designed to withstand the rugged treatment of adult turkeys through grow-out.



NEW PLASTIC PAN
Easier to clean... non-corrosive... lighter... Cumberland's plastic pan for both STF and RTF Adult Pan Feeders features improved structural engineering with stronger support gussets, a more durable and effective "hanger" for cleaning and a unique set of two feed-saving "catch walls" that significantly reduce raking and billout.

The first 7-10 days of a broiler's life are critical. The eating habits they develop then establish their growth pattern for life.

For these very young birds the Cumberland HI-LO Pan Feeder, resting on the house floor, presents a lip height of 2.1" (the average height of traditional "chick lids"). Because they can easily and safely get in and out of the pan, they're eating out of the pan from day one.

And because the pan needn't be "flooded," they're getting only fresh feed... and only as much as they need.

Then as the birds grow, and the feed line is raised, the Cumberland HI-LO Pan Feeder E-X-P-A-N-D-S into a 3.5" deep adult bird pan!

The higher wall and feed saver lip prevent waste from raking and billout... and cause the birds to eat nearer the outside edge of the pan, assuring a more even "first in, first out" utilization of feed (which also saves feed and maintains freshness).

Crop Insurance Reform Bill Boon To Farmers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Changes in the federal crop insurance program give farmers independence for guarding their operation's financial health, according to the manager of one of the nation's largest crop insurance agencies.

"There are a variety of options farmers can use to manage risk on their farm," said Terri Wallace, manager of PHI Insurance Services, Inc., a subsidiary of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. Wallace recently spoke about crop insurance reform, commodity marketing and risk management at the national meeting of WIFE — Women Involved in Farm Economics.

"Farming is a risky business, but the secret to success is to transfer that risk," said Wallace. "There are some alternatives to losing sleep worrying about the weather. By combining crop insurance with marketing, farmers can improve cash flows in bad years and maximize profits in good years."

WIFE, a grassroots organization, is committed to improving profitability in production agriculture. WIFE members are farm owners and operators from around the country. Wallace told WIFE members that as women, they have a distinct advantage for using crop insurance and marketing as tools to manage risk. "It has been proven that women are better fundamental marketers than men. Women are more likely to make a plan and stick to it and not let their emotions get involved."

Terri Wallace

Producers can transfer weather-related risks as well as most other unavoidable perils which cause production loss to a crop insurance policy. Then regardless of the weather, every aspect of an operation, from the crop to the producer to the lender, is protected.

Pioneer Hi-Bred through its Business Information Services group offers insurance services in most midwest states including Multiple Peril Crop Insurance, Market Value Protection (MVP), and PHI Plus, which adds farm-specific professional marketing recommendations to the farmer's crop insurance portfolio. MVP, a relatively new product, allows farmers to aggressively market their guaranteed multi-peril bushels, even when the crop yields are low. "With the Market Value Protection policy, your bushels are practically in the bin the day you plant," Wallace said.

CONTROLLING THE NORTHERN FOWL MITE

Dr. Charlie Pitts
Professor Of Entomology

A number of infestations of the northern fowl mite have been reported; therefore, producers should be on the lookout for infestations in their layer houses. To successfully control this pest, one should know its biology.

The northern fowl mite, Ornithonyssus Sylviarum, infests a wide variety of domestic fowl and wild birds and is the most important and common external parasite of poultry. Feeding on blood, heavy mite infestations can irritate and stress birds, reducing egg production by 10 to 15 percent.

However, a production loss of only a small percentage can add up to significant losses over the total life of a caged-laying flock. Heavy populations can also reduce weight gains and, in male birds, reduce seminal fluid volume. Mites can also annoy egg handlers and other personnel.

Mites first congregate in the vent area, then the tail, back, and legs of female birds; however, they are more scattered on male birds. As the mite population increases, feathers become soiled from mite eggs, cast skins, dried blood, and excrement. The soiling produces the characteristic blackened feathers in the vent area. Scabs may also form in the vent area. While death due to actual anemia is rare, birds with heavy infestations (50,000 mites/bird) can lose six percent of their blood daily.

Mite populations can increase rapidly after a bird has been first infested, especially during the cooler months and on young birds (20 to 30 weeks of age). Newly infested birds may support mite populations in excess of 20,000 per bird in nine to 10 weeks. Mites do not become established on birds in large numbers until birds reach sexual maturity. Also, birds older than 40 weeks usually do not support many mites.

The northern fowl mite completes its entire life cycle on the bird, although they can survive off the host for two to three weeks under suitable conditions. Life cycle stages consist of egg, larva, two nymphal stages, and adult. The eight-legged adult is only 1/26th of an inch long and is usually dark red to black. Females lay two to five eggs in the fluff of feathers after each blood meal. Eggs hatch into six-legged larvae within two days. All other mite stages possess eight legs.

Nonfeeding larvae develop in approximately nine hours and molt into blood-feeding nymphs that develop in one or two days. Second stage nymphs, like the larvae, do not feed and molt to adults in less than a day. The entire life cycle can be completed within a week under favorable conditions.

Mite Control

Control of northern fowl mites in caged-layer operations is based on efforts to prevent infestation and to apply an acaricide when an infestation occurs. Regularly monitoring flocks for the presence of mites will allow them to be detected while the population is low or isolated to a few birds.

A house should be clean and mite-free before new birds are moved in, and the new flock should be mite-free. Once the flocks are in the house, care should be taken to prevent contamination from the clothing of workers and various equipment since mites can live for a few weeks off the host.

Mites have been shown to be readily transferred from an infested house to an uninfested house by contaminated egg flats. Wild birds and rodents can harbor and disseminate northern fowl mites as well.

The detection of an initial low-mite population that can be controlled effectively and economically is important in a mite-monitoring program. With early detection, only part of a caged-layer house may need to be treated.

At least 10 randomly selected birds from each cage row in the entire house should be monitored weekly. The vent area should be examined under a bright light and the feathers parted to reveal the mites.

Single caged birds often have more mites than those caged in groups and, because of variation in susceptibility among birds, one bird may have mites while its cage mates are mite-free.

The following index is effective for estimating infestation levels: 0 = no mites observed, 1 = one to two mites, 2 = three to nine mites, 3 = 10 to 31 mites, 4 = 32 to 99 mites, 5 = 100 to 300 mites, 6 = 301 to 999 mites, 7 = 1,000 to 3,000 mites, 8 = 3,001 to 9,999 mites, 9 = 10,000 to 32,000 mites, and 10 = more than 32,000 mites. An average index of five or greater for all examined birds generally indicates the need for chemical treatment.

The actual decision to treat is influenced by flock age, time of year, and distribution of the infestation in the house. It is usually not economical to treat older birds because their mite populations are unlikely to increase. A population buildup is more likely in a young flock. Mite populations can be expected to increase in cooler months and decrease in warmer months. An infestation restricted to one part of the house may not spread, but the infested area should be closely monitored. Detection of mites in broiler-breeder operations generally means the entire flock must be treated.

Chemical control of northern fowl mites in caged-layer operations requires direct pesticide application to the vent region with sufficient pressure (minimum 100 to 125 psi) to penetrate the feathers. The spray will have to be directed upward from beneath the cages to reach the vent.

A split treatment of a recommended active ingredient may increase effectiveness since water is held better when applied to wet feathers. Mix half the insecticide in the standard amount of water for the first application, spray, and then mix the other half in another standard amount of water for the second application.

Dust formulations can be purchased ready to use and may be applied to caged-layers with a power blower. Treatment is difficult in broiler-breeder operations where birds are not confined to cages. Current recommendations for sprays can be obtained from your local extension agent.

National Shorthorn Leadership Elected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Bill Rasor, Allen, Texas, will serve a second term as the president of the American Shorthorn Association board of directors.

Rasor, owner and operator of WHR Shorthorns, was reelected to a second term at the organization's annual meeting in conjunction with the National Shorthorn Show at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

Rasor, completing a second three-year term, was first elected to the board in 1992. He and his wife, Becky, have long been breed leaders and promoters in both state and national activities. Their children, Will and Ann, have been active in the American Junior Shorthorn Association. Will serves as the vice president of the American Junior Shorthorn Association board of directors.

Reelected as the national vice president was Dr. James Freed, Chickasha, Okla. The Freed operation, Double J Ranch, has established a national reputation for producing strong, performance oriented breeding cattle. Support and dedication to the Shorthorn breed is a family affair. Freed's wife, Beverly, is a former director of the National Shorthorn Lassies. Their children, Janet and Jetty, have both achieved outstanding success in the junior program.

Two new directors were elected to the board for three-year terms by the voting delegates from 21 districts in attendance. Ron Moore, Jerseyville, Ill., is one of three members of the Hugh Moore Jr. & Sons Shorthorn operation. Moore has played a major role in the development of their strong program and the continued growth of the Shorthorn influence in his area.

Also elected to the board of directors was Bruce Wallace, East Bend, N.C. Wallace's love of the Short-horn breed began in 1940. The owner and operator of Flint Hill Farm is establishing a premier breeding program of seedstock genetics.

Retiring members having completed six years on the board were Dermy Jordan, Gibson City, Ill., and Maurice Korthaus, Prospect, Ky. Jordan was a two-term national president.

Returning members of the board are Robert Alden, Hamilton, Mo.; Hale Charlton, Quincy, Calif.; Bradley Eisiminger, Waynesburg, Pa.; Dale Rocker, Seward, Neb.; and Doug Schrag, Marion, S.D. Dr. Roger E. Hunsley serves as the breed's executive secretary-treasurer at the American Shorthorn Association offices in Omaha, Neb.

Crop Insurance Reforms Give Farmers More Options

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Federal Crop Insurance Reform Act of 1994 has made it easier for fanners to reduce risk without adding a large financial burden to their bottom line, said an economist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

In years past, many farmers opted not to purchase crop insurance, confident that federal disaster aid would pay for any crop loss linked to such natural disasters as drought, excess moisture, frosts and freezes, hail, wind, floods, insects and disease. According to Jayson Harper, assistant professor of agricultural economics, the crop insurance reform bill makes it easier and cheaper to obtain protection against hazards that are beyond the farmer's control.

"Farmers often didn't buy crop insurance because the thinking was 'My senator or representative will bail me out if it gets too bad,'" Harper said. "Farm disaster aid was not part of the federal budget, so these disaster bailouts were adding to the deficit. The new crop insurance rules mean that farmers can protect themselves individually from a natural disaster at very little cost.

"Under the reform bill, ad hoc disaster aid will no longer be available," Harper said.

Harper said the reform bill makes it mandatory for any farmer participating in federal farm programs — such as price support programs, Farmers Home Administration loans and the Conservation Reserve Program, to buy crop insurance. However, Harper emphasizes that farmers do not have to participate in federal programs to get crop insurance. The mandatory program, called catastrophic crop insurance, guarantees 50 percent of the farmer's average yield, based on the farm's production records for four or more years.

"In the past, farmers had to provide 10 years of records for crop insurance," Harper said. "If the farmer didn't have 10 years of records, the program used a county average, which penalized the top producers by averaging them in with below-average producers. Four years makes it much easier for the farmer to qualify."

If a farmer's crop falls beneath the 50 percent yield guarantee, insurance will pay 60 percent of the market price established for the crop. There is no insurance premium for catastrophic coverage, although farmers must pay a processing fee of $50 per crop. Producers can buy catastrophic crop insurance through private agents or at U.S. Department of Agriculture offices.

Harper said some 20 Pennsylvania crops are covered under the catastrophic program, including corn, barley, oats, beans, potatoes, peas, peaches and apples.

In addition, producers can buy higher levels of protection, although farmers must pay premiums for this coverage, called "multiple peril crop insurance." "You can cover 50, 65 or 75 percent of your yield production and set a payment of up to 100 percent of the established market price. All you have to do is sign up for it and prove your yields," Harper said.

Many crops grown in Pennsylvania, such as mushrooms, sweet cherries, strawberries, melons and others, are not covered by the crop insurance programs. These crops can be protected under a new plan called the Noninsured Assistance Program (NAP). There is no premium for this coverage, but producers must sign up for it in advance, prove they have a crop and prove their yield history.

Harper explains NAP payments can go to farmers in any area (such as a county) if the area's average yield is less than 65 percent. If an individual farmer has yield losses greater than 50 percent of normal production, then NAP will pay off at 60 percent of the crop's market price.

"Under the old system of disaster aid, these crops might have slipped through the cracks or a small, localized disaster might not have qualified," Harper said.

"Pennsylvania traditionally has had a very low sign-up for crop insurance as well as low participation in federal programs," Harper said. "The best argument for participating is that these programs are available at little or no cost and give growers a lot of protection.

"Farmers can do a lot of things to minimize risk," Harper adds. "There are certain things outside their control, such as the weather. Having crop insurance might make the difference between having a bad year and going out of business."

Successful Dairy Producers Effective Managers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — While there is no one "cookbook" recipe to dairy profitability, there are some success stories for dairy farms that are the result of "managing like crazy," according to Gary Snider, director of consulting services, Farm Credit of Western N.Y.

Snider spoke to about 200 dairy farmers during the Agri-Basics Annual Dairy Seminar held last week at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

Using data compiled by the Agrifax Benchmark Program and used by Farm Credit, Snider listed key elements that have gone into making dairy farms successful in his region.

In one true-life example, Snider cited the aggressive management of a newlywed "college couple" that used the money for their honeymoon — all $4,000 — to purchase a mixer wagon. They quickly boosted average milk output per cow from 16,000 to 21,000 pounds. With the help of good neighbors, said Snider, they also invested $50,000 in a new barn.

Snider said these managers are typical of the new "college couples" right out of Penn State or Cornell that are "goal-driven, not afraid to change, and are wise and conservative investors."

The program placed the most successful dairy farmers into five basic groups:

- Managers who are good with cows, with 21,956 pounds of milk sold per cow.
- Labor efficient, with 1,049,721 pounds of milk per worker per year.
- Can obtain a great milk price, about $14.27/CWT.
- Tight with money, producing milk at $10.44/CWT.
- Good "utility infielders," producers who are good at managing and working with "a lot of things," said Snider.

The best producers had no control over the milk price, but still managed to raise their own livestock (heifers are the equivalent to "money in the bank," said Snider) and kept costs down. Also, they keep totals of milk sold per worker high, use capital debt effectively, maintain adequate liquidity over expenses, develop many skills in response to changes, and have surplus buffers in place to cope with fluctuating price and changing weather.

"We love these guys," said Snider. "They're great farmers and excellent to do business with."

In "managing like crazy," the most effective earners believe nothing is sacred (they don't keep "favorite cows"), they wipe out any previous dairy traditions, and don't hold to "paradigms" (the belief that the way we do business has been the way we always do business).

"The successful producers are excellent feeding managers" who can balance and utilize feed correctly and can "tighten up the shop" (not spend on items until the profit is made), according to Snider.

While there is no one "cookbook" recipe to dairy profitability, there are some success stories for dairy farms that are the result of "managing like crazy," according to Gary Snider, director of consulting services, Farm Credit of Western N.Y., far right. Snider was one of the speakers during the Agri-Basics Annual Dairy Seminar held last week at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland. From left, Jerry M. Swisher, Jr., dairy agent, Virginia Cooperative Extension; Dr. Will Hoover, professor of dairy science, West Virginia University; and Snider.

One of the ways to keep costs down effectively and improve herd health is through the correct application of pasture rotational grazing. The important considerations are forage quality, availability, and selection, according to Jerry M. Swisher, Jr., area dairy agent, Virginia Cooperative Extension.

Swisher spoke about the importance of proper grazing material selection and how important it is to maintain the pastures so the material is palatable and is readily available to cows.

Dr. Will Hoover, professor of dairy science, West Virginia University, said that it is important to look at the interactions of feed with the rumen.

Cyanamid Eliminates Jugs In Herbicide Packaging

WAYNE, N.J. — Since American Cyanamid Company introduced Eco-Pak™ water-soluble packaging, more than 500,000 plastic jugs have been eliminated.

To further its environmental efforts, Cyanamid will make a total conversion of all 1-gallon jugs of liquid Pursuit® herbicide to the new Eco-Pak® package nationwide by 1996.

Pursuit® DG herbicide in Eco-Pak® is a dry granular formulation in watersoluble packaging containing two separately sealed packets. Each of these packets holds enough product to treat five acres.

Pursuit in liquid form will continue to be available in Pursuit® System 250™ Bulk Dispensers and 15-gallon returnable bulk (Field Keg) systems.

The chemistry of Pursuit has not been changed — only the formulation is new. Growers using Pursuit in Eco-Pak® can still depend on the broadspectrum control of more than 50 grasses and broadleaf weeds, such as velvetleaf, cocklebur, jimsonweed, foxtails, shattercane, nightshade, and pigweeds.

To further its environmental efforts, Cyanamid will make a total conversion of all 1-gallon jugs of liquid Pursuit® herbicide to the new Eco-Pak® package nationwide by 1996.

American Cyanamid To License Closed Handling System

WAYNE, N.J., — American Cyanamid Company and Rhône-Poulenc Ag Company, Research Triangle Park, N.C., announced that they had signed a letter of intent for Cyanamid to license to Rhône-Poulenc its Lock'n Load® closed handling system on a non-exclusive basis.

The companies are working toward the execution of a definitive license agreement and expect it to be completed soon.

Under the license, Rhône-Poulenc would sell its insecticide Temik® brand aldicarb and Mocap® brand ethoprop insecticides in the distinctive Lock'n Load containers. Primary markets for these products include cotton, peanuts, potatoes, and sugar cane.

The Lock'n Load closed handling system was the product of a three-year, joint development effort of American Cyanamid and Deere and Co.

Walter Named Finalist At Forage Superbowl

DEKALB, Ill — Rodney Walter, Lewisburg, Pa., has been named a finalist in the dairy haylage division of the World's Forage Analysis Superbowl

Walter and his father run a dairy farm, milking 40 head. They produce alfalfa on about 70 acres each year and raise corn and soybeans on the rest of their 150 acres.

The first-year Forage Superbowl entrant didn't use any special treatment on his contest field, and attributes his success to the use of a quality alfalfa variety.

"My haylage sample was from a four-year-old stand on some rented ground that I farm," Walter said "I used DK125 for my entry because it has always given us high yields and protein levels with fast regrowth after cutting We also used Dekalb alfalfa varieties to win first place at both Penn State Ag Progress Days and the Pennsylvania Farm Show last year"

Walter's sample of Dekalb Brand DK125 had a relative feed value of 164. It produced 2,115 pounds of milk per ton and had 21.9 percent protein. His rolling herd average was 21,405 pounds.

Hoffman Seeds Offers New Soybeans

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Hoffman Seeds has introduced three Funk's soybeans for the 1995 planting season. The company is also offering a free decal that recommends seeding rates to achieve various plant populations.

An Early Group 3 variety, 3304 has produced a 4 bushel/acre advantage over popular competitive varieties in side-by-side comparisons. Plant height is medium with moderate branching. 3304 offers excellent seed quality and is recommended as a full season variety for planting at 180,000 plants/acre.

3315 STS™ produces top-end yields, while providing extra options for weed control. STS soybean varieties allow for higher application rates of sulfonylurea herbicides, which target hard to control weeds. As a result, 3315 exhibits enhanced tolerance to DuPont Classic® and Pinnacle® herbicides. An Early Group 3 variety, it also provides good tolerance to Phytophthora Root Rot.

3505 produced a 4.5 bushel/acre yield advantage over Hutcheson and a 6 bushel/acre advantage over the plot mean in 92 side-by-side comparisons. Recommended for all Group 5 maturity areas of Delmarva and Virginia, it is resistant to Cyst Nematode R3. 3505 matures approximately seven days earlier than Hutcheson.

4-Wheel Drive 'Value' Tractor From Massey Ferguson

ATLANTA, Ga. — Massey Ferguson's new MF® 1120 compact tractor is designed for buyers looking for a durable, high-performance four-wheel-drive tractor that is affordable within today's tight budgets.

"The 'value-priced' 16 horsepower MF 1120 is built to high standards of comfort, convenience, and versatility," said Richard Petree, Massey Ferguson® marketing manager, "and is available with ag or turf tires, making it ideally suited for light utility work around the farmstead and for estate mowing."

The MF 1120 is powered with a 16 horsepower, naturally aspirated 3 cylinder diesel engine with indirect fuel injection for quieter operation, reduced exhaust emissions, and improved fuel economy. A belt-driven water pump provides positive circulation of the engine coolant for consistent operating temperatures, longer engine life, and reduced operating costs.

The MF 1120 is available with either a hydrostatic or standard gear transmission. The hydrostatic transmission provides infinite speed selechon from 0 to 9.5 mph without clutching, and is ideal for jobs requiring frequent direction changes. Two speed ranges tailor the torque load to the power train, reducing stress on components and extending life.

New Massey Ferguson® four-wheel-drive, 16 HP, MF® 1120 Compact Tractor is a durable, high-performance "value" model, designed to be affordable within today's tight budgets. The MF 1120 is ideally suited for estate mowing and light utility work around the farmstead.

The 6 x 2 standard gear transmission uses a durable, proven design with three main gears and two range selections. Available speeds from 0.7 to 8.8 mph give the operator the ability to select the right speed for the job. A direct, inline shift between first and reverse makes changing direction easy and increases productivity.

Farm Works Introduces Time-Saving Ag Software

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Farm Works software presents the farmer with complete field mapping (Farm Trac) and cost accounting (Farm Fund$) packages that include the ability to map fields, keep chemical records and maintain books on both an Accrual and Cash basis.

Farm Works offers such features as profitability of each field or herd of animals, detailed records of costs associated with each piece of equipment, easy-to-follow reports for year-end close, payroll, check writing and check book reconciliation, etc.

Written for IBM PC-compatible computers and Microsoft® Windows™ 3.1, "Farm Funds" is fully integrated with "Farm Trac", where field maps are easily drawn by scanning ASCS maps and then using Farm Trac's CAD tools to detail the drawings.

Farm Trac also offers such features as printed notation listings by field and date, automatic recording of fertilizer and chemical rates, and on-screen recordings of field histories, livestock equipment, and personnel.

By clicking on the person, tractor, and equipment icons and then touching the field, "Farm Trac" simulates the actions and automatically records every aspect of the operation. With "Farm Trac", restricted use pesticide reports can be recorded, sorted, and printed automatically for compliance with state and federal regulations.

Norman Teegardin, president of CTN Data, said, "We have basically designed what farmers want and need. With this state-of-the-art software, Farm Works is taking farming into the 21st century."

Marty Campfield, director of agronomic services, Gro-Mor Plant Food Company, said, "The record keeping and field mapping abilities of 'Farm Trac' allows a farmer to spend more time farming and less time doing paperwork!"

Purdue, Michigan State, and Ohio State universities, have used the software as many large corporations including Heinz, Sunkist, Dole, DuPont and Ciba.

Case Introduces New Axial-Flow Combines

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — At its annual dealer business meetings held here, Case Corporation unveiled the new Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow® combines, featuring an all-new cab, as well as upgraded electronics, hydraulics and power train.

The new 2144, 2166 and 2188 replace the 1644, 1666 and 1688, respectively.

For more than two years, Case has brought owners of Case IH and competitive brands of combines to its combine manufacturing plant in East Moline, Ill., to review the design and construction of its machines. Case has also sent engineers and manufacturing personnel into the field with dealers and customers to gather information and feedback about equipment performance and features. Customer input obtained from these activities has been used to develop the new line of Axial-Flow combines.

For instance, the large, curved-glass windows which provide a panoramic view to the sides and an uninterrupted view to the header were developed in response to customer requests for improved visibility.

"Increased visibility was a priority, but we've enhanced a lot more than the view," said Gerry Salzman, Case senior product manager, combines and cotton equipment systems.

The cab incorporates dozens of comfort and convenience features designed in response to customer requests, according to Salzman. For starters, the new Case IH cab frame is bigger—a full 8 inches wider than on 1600 Series models. This helps to accommodate the wide, suspension seat, as well as the improved passenger seat with cushioned back and under-seat storage compartment.

"The operator who is more comfortable is more productive," said Salzman. "That's why the seats and critical controls on these cabs adjust to the operator, and not the operator to the cab." He pointed out that the steering column can be adjusted at the floor and additionally near the wheel to accommodate a wide range of operator preferences.

The new "soft-ride" cab uses state-of-the-art mounting to minimize bounce, even in rough terrain, for a smooth, comfortable ride. "This unique cab mounting gives the operator the feeling that the cab is suspended at the operator's center of gravity rather than at the floor," said Salzman. "Operators experience less movement of the head and upper body, especially when traveling on rough ground."

"Too often the words 'shields' and 'serviceability' are mutually exclusive," Salzman said. "Shields on the 2100 Series combines are designed to provide both enhanced customer safety and convenient service access."

Among other improvements, gas cylinders have been added to ease opening of the front right and left service panels, and the left rear service panel has been hinged for easier access.

The Case IH 2144, 2166 and 2188 Axial-Flow combines are rated at 180, 215 and 260 net engine horsepower, respectively.

Deere Names New Vice President

MOLINE, Ill. — Deere & Company has appointed Robert W. "Bud" Porter as vice president of farm equipment marketing in the U.S. and Canada, replacing Neil O. Christenson, who retired in October after a 36- year career with the company. The announcement was made by Bernie L. Hardiek, executive vice president of Deere's worldwide agricultural equipment division.

Porter, 55, brings 30 years of marketing experience with Deere to his new position, which has been expanded to include his former duties as director of sales branches, in addition to the marketing responsibilities of the agricultural equipment division.

A native of Reynoldsburg, Ohio, and a graduate of The Ohio State University, Porter began his career with John Deere in 1964 in Lansing, Mich. While there, he served as assistant territory manager, territory manager, and dealer management adviser. In 1971 he was appointed division manager, retail finance at the company's sales branch in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1972 he transferred to the Memphis branch office as business management advisor and the following year, was appointed division sales manager at the Kansas City branch office. He became general sales manager at the Minneapolis sales branch in 1976. Three years later he was appointed general manager.

In 1984 he was promoted to director of sales branches, the position he held until his appointment as vice president of marketing.

Networking Helps Pork Producers Access Resources

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Strategies on how pork producers can work together to produce and market their hogs were discussed at a networking conference in December sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) in association with the National Pork Board.

Networking is the '90s term being used today in the pork industry to describe business arrangements between producers as well as between producers and ag suppliers. This was the second in a series of NPPC conferences on networking. The conference featured speakers who are members of producer networks in addition to ag industries who work closely with networks.

"Producer networking is one management strategy producers can use to address the changes that are taking place in the pork industry," said NPPC president Glen Keppy, a producer from the Davenport, Iowa, area.

"The pork industry is gradually transforming itself from a commodity to a product-oriented industry. This shift will require producers to change to meet the requirements set by the rest of the pork chain," Keppy said.

Producer networks are established throughout the United States, said Earl Dotson, NPPC director of producer education. "These networks vary from producing seedstock or feeder pigs, to buying ag supplies collectively, to marketing hogs together," Dotson said. "There are also networks that are formed solely to share information among members."

"Networking is a way of doing something that you cannot do alone," said Iowa State University ag economist John Lawrence. "It provides a mutual benefit to its members. The group needs to have a common vision as well as a leader." Lawrence says group leadership may be provided by one of the members, or by someone in the community, such as a local veterinarian, feed company, lender, or accountant.

Pork producers may learn more about networking by watching a live 90-minute satellite program on Feb. 28, sponsored by NPPC. To find out the satellite coordinates or the viewing site nearest you, call (800) 987-7447.

Dairy Producers

Producers should keep in mind that "we don't feed the cows, we feed the rumen," said Hoover.

The relationship between feed and the rumen is a complex one, involving many variables.

Swisher, dairy agent, stressed the importance of exercise lot management in the overall prevention of mastitis and providing improvements in herd profitability.

There are many benefits to rotating exercise lots, not only in the decrease of mastitis (which costs all milk producers nationwide about $1.75 billion annually) but environmentally as well.

A clean and neat exercise lot, carefully rotated, also "sends a more positive, healthier, more wholesome picture of the dairy industry" to consumers, said Swisher. "It has a real impact."

Extension Professionals Retire

NEWARK, Del, — Of the six professionals retiring from University of Delaware Cooperative Extension this year, some came to extension by design, others by chance. But they contributed to the quality of life for Delawareans.

Doris H. Crowley, who retired as coordinator of Agricultural Sciences Communications Oct. 1, was responsible for the group that produces Outreach, the college's annual report and Extension publications. A native Californian, Crowley came to Delaware as a Winterthur fellow and stayed. She began as a writer for the communications group in 1972.

"I heard Delaware Extension was looking for a writer, and I jumped at the chance," Crowley said. "It was the perfect opportunity to use my communication skills and to get out information that would help people."

Crowley is proud of a series she wrote and photographed on heritage skills and of the several supplements she helped plan and write for The Delmarva Farmer. "In the mid-1980s I worked on a supplement called 'Smart Farming for Tough Times,'" Crowley said. "It contained useful and important information that would help farmers stay in business. I found the project personally satisfying."

In 1988 Crowley was named coordinator of the communications group. Outreach, a monthly newspaper, was established under her leadership.

Claudia H. Holden will retire Dec. 31 as state coordinator for the Expanded Food Nutrition and Education Program (EFNEP), a statewide program that delivers nutrition education to low-income families.

Holden came to Delaware from a small town in North Carolina to attend Delaware State University. She had planned to become a buyer in New York, but stayed in Delaware, first to teach and then to work in Extension. In 1969 Holden was hired as a Kent County home economist, working primarily with the EFNEP program, which was in its infancy. In 1986 she became EFNEP state coordinator.

"Helping folks help themselves has been the most gratifying part of my career," Holden said. "I have seen the children of the families we've worked with in EFNEP go on to very successful lives and careers—children that came out of deteriorating conditions to become productive citizens."

Holden feels strongly about the EFNEP program expanding.

"If I have one hope for the future of EFNEP, it's that it be recognized for the integral part of Extension that it is," said Holden. "EFNEP is a program through which voices are heard that otherwise might go unnoticed. EFNEP offers a vast amount of information and expertise to be valued and explored. It's time that all Delaware's citizens experience the advantages this program has to offer."

Gerald F. Vaughn, a specialist for resource economics and policy, will retire in December. In 1967 he joined Delaware Extension as coordinator of community and resource development.

A native of Salisbury, Md., Vaughn earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland and a master's from the University of Delaware. His career has been devoted to observing, researching and writing materials on economics and policy issues. These materials provide groups, government agencies and decision makers with information on public issues that affect Delmarva residents.

In the 1970s, much of his study was on the economic development of Delaware as related to business and industry. By the 1980s, his work took on an environmental thrust. For the past few years Vaughn has concentrated on the state's population and economic growth as it affects the ecology. Vaughn created a public policy newsletter—Economic & Policy Outlook for Delaware Agriculture and Natural Resources—in 1991, which has addressed these issues.

"Yogi Berra said 'you can observe a lot just by watching'; that kind of sums up what I've done in my career," Vaughn said with a smile, though he's serious about his work and what will happen to Delaware if growth continues unchecked. "We have a real jewel in this state we call Delaware, yet we treat it like junk jewelry," Vaughn said. "If I could leave a legacy, it would be the hope that people in our state will take growth management and planning seriously. I'm convinced that effective planning can be a reality if initiated by 1995. In two to three years, it will be too late."

Frank J. Webb, who retired May 1 as state weed control specialist, was hired as a county agricultural agent in 1969. A Delaware native, raised on a farm near South Bowers Beach, Webb started as a Kent County agricultural agent. He spent much of his career at the Research and Education Center in Georgetown conducting educational programs, demonstrations and field research on agronomic crops.

"I look back at two projects I was involved in that contributed a lot to agriculture," said Webb, who is farming full time. "The weed control advances for no-till crop production is one. The second is starting up a viable grain sorghum production system for farmers in southern Delaware. Sorghum is a boon to farmers who rotate with soybeans, because it's drought resistant and the inputs are much less costly than for corn."

Webb, who developed strategies for weed control for Delaware farmers and agribusinesses, is recognized nationally for his educational programs based on his field research on weed control recommendations. Webb earned both his bachelor's and his master's degrees from the University of Delaware.

Thomas H. Williams will retire Dec. 31 as extension water quality specialist. He works with the agricultural community to provide educational programs in best management practices that result in a safer water supply.

"A career in Extension can be anything you make it," said Williams, who hadn't really planned to work for extension when he signed on in 1966 as a specialist in agriculture engineering. "But I liked the idea of working with people to solve problems."

Williams is a native Delawarean with a bachelor's degree in agriculture and a master's in electrical engineering from the University of Delaware. He's proud of his work with no-tillage and conservation-tillage production systems in the 1970s, and the following decade, dead-bird disposal that helped the industry and farmers dispose of dead poultry in an environmental way.

David H. Woodward, who will retire in December as assistant director for agriculture and natural resources, didn't start out in a career with extension either, but ag agents had an influence on him early in life when they visited his family's farm near Middletown.

"I remember thinking at the time that an ag agent could really make a contribution helping people in agriculture," Woodward said. "I liked the idea of going around informing people of new and better ways of doing things so they could earn a better living for their families."

With a degree in animal science from the University of Delaware, Woodward worked for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and was a sales representative for Ralston Purina Company before embarking on a career in extension. In 1971 he became a Kent County agricultural agent. He said being a part of the no-till program in the state was a highlight of his agent's experience.

In 1984, Woodward became state leader for agriculture and natural resources, and in 1988, the assistant director for agriculture and natural resources. It is his responsibility to supply program leadership and coordinate efforts with state agencies and organizations to provide educational programs to the agricultural community.

He is also one on the founders of the Friends of Agriculture breakfast, which monthly brings together farmers, agribusiness leaders, decision makers and others to focus on agricultural issues.

"I'm a doer more than a planner—I like making things happen," said Woodward about his Extension experience. "And I like helping people help themselves."

Nationwide Insurance Pledges $2.5 Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The Nationwide Insurance Enterprise Foundation has pledged $2.5 million to The Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio, to enhance the university's business and agricultural programs.

Nationwide has designated $1 million for an endowed professorship in urban and rural policies in the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences. The endowed chair will be named for C. William Swank, who has been executive vice president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation since 1968 and has worked for the organization since 1956. Nationwide was founded in 1925 by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation .

Swank said it was "a humbling moment" when he learned the professorship will be named in his honor. He said the professorship is needed because "the pressures of urban living present a lot of problems that need to be addressed — zoning, rural job development, property rights, the use of fertilizers and pesticides, and wildlife control.

Swank, 63, plans to retire within the next two years.

"We know of no other chair in America that undertakes this goal," said D. Richard McFerson, Nationwide's president and chief operating officer.

McFerson, in announcing the $2.5 million pledge, said, "This gift is in recognition of the enormously important role The Ohio State University plays in the lives of people and the economy of Ohio and the nation. We want to participate in the beginning stages of what will be important changes for the university."

E. Gordon Gee, OSU's president, said the pledge "shows the depth and breadth of Nationwide's commitment to excellence and its desire to join with us to ensure that future leaders in business and agriculture will possess the knowledge and skills to lead the state and nation well into the next century."

Half of the $2.5 million will go to OSU's Max M. Fisher College of Business and half will be allocated to the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences to promote research in agriculture. The pledge will be paid in installments during the next five years. Other pledge allocations are:

- $2 million to support an undergraduate honors program and to provide scholarships for juniors and seniors in the Fisher College of Business.
- $250,000 to help finance construction of an honors lounge in the Fisher undergraduate building. Construction of the $78.4 million Fisher complex is to begin in 1995.
- $250,000 for construction of a conference building for the Center for Education and Economic Development at OSU's campus in Wooster, Ohio. The 6,000-square foot facility will be used for group functions, luncheons, training sessions, banquets, and other events.

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

When Planning Your Forage Programs, Remember That Your Main Objective Is To Store The Plant And Remove It From Storage In As Good Condition As Possible. The Upright Silo Has Never Been Equalled In Its Ability To Do This...
On Most Dairy Farms, Forage Quality Is The Single Most Improtant Factor Relating To Profit...

Poured Concrete Silos Consistently Out-Perform All Other Methods Of Storing And Preserving The Total Digestible Nutrients In Forage Crops...

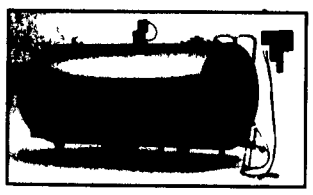
Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

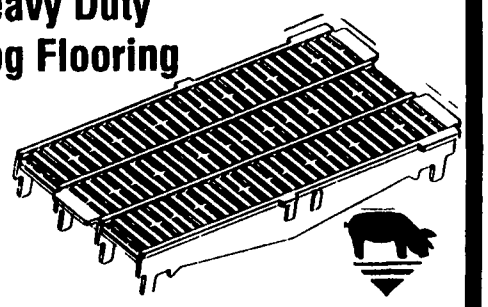
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? CHECK OUT Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Farocx has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

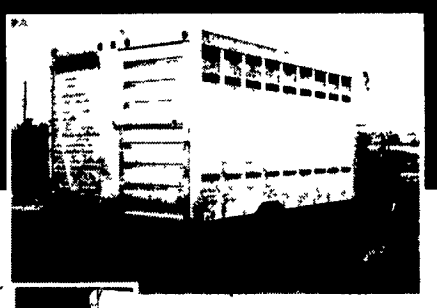
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

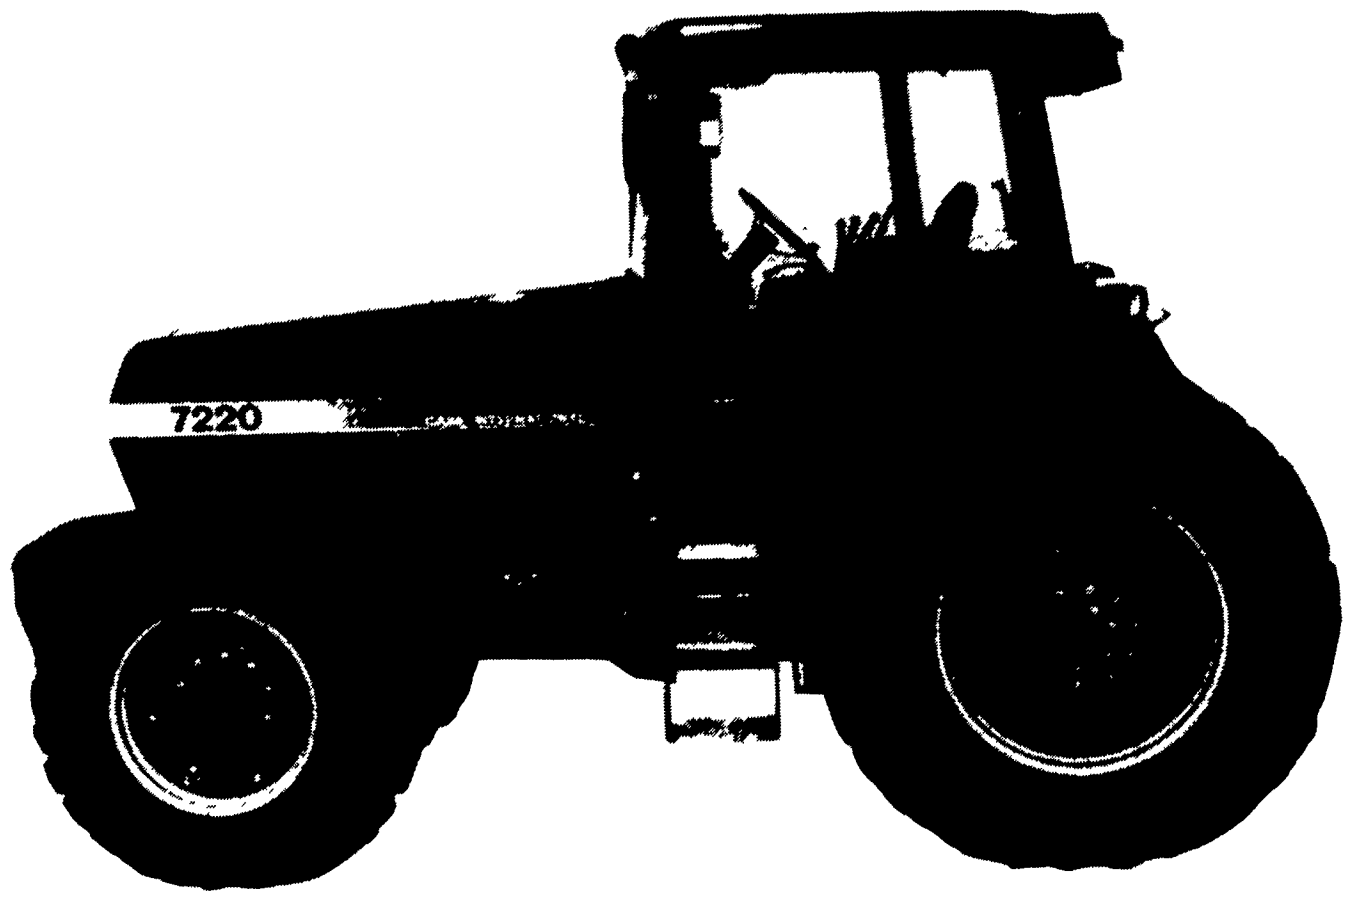
Best Values in New Equipment

... And Now, The Encore



Eight years ago, the introduction of MAGNUM™ tractors set the new standard of performance for high horsepower row crop tractors. The new standard for power and control.The new standard for visibility and operator comfort. And the new standard for reliability and durability. Eight years of field-proven performance would be good enough for some.

But we weren't content to rest on our laurels — we listened as you told us what impressed you most about your MAGNUM tractor, and what you needed to take your own performance to the next level. Then we took the best and made it even better.

Now, with the introduction of the new 7200 Series MAGNUM tractors, the standard has just been raised. Smarter styling, improved engines, refined transmissions, better mechanical front drive, and more.

Why? Because when you tell us what you need, we listen. We hear you!

Alliance Forms To Market Hereford Beef

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A major beef industry alliance has been formed between Midland Cattle Co., Mid Ag, and the American Hereford Association (AHA) to market certified Hereford beef (CHB) as a branded product.

Contracts have been signed granting Mid Ag rights to distribute CHB. Retail license agreements to market the product will be issued by the American Hereford Association. Formal announcement of the coalition was made by officials of Mid Ag, Midland Cattle Co., and the American Hereford Association in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 7, at AHA's annual membership meeting.

Midland Cattle Co., and its affiliate, Mid Ag, are Midwestern-based operations with headquarters in Red Oak, Iowa. Gordon Reisinger is the president and CEO of Midland and Mid Ag. Midland Cattle Co. has operated as a major order buying firm for the past 10 years and Mid Ag is a new company formed to process and distribute Certified Hereford Beef.

With an aggressive plan to ensure consistent quality of the branded beef product, Midland and Mid Ag will maintain control of CHB from selecting feeder cattle genetics to selling beef to the consumer. Midland will be involved in procuring high quality Hereford and Hereford crossbred feeder cattle, managing retained ownership cattle, and monitoring feedlot management in cooperating yards. Mid Ag will be involved in buying finished cattle, making arrangements for custom slaughter, monitoring product management, and making sales to retail stores, purveyors, and restaurants.

"With strong Midwestern roots, Midland has always had a reputation for buying high quality feeder cattle," said Reisinger. "Many of our customers are farmer feeders who insist on quality cattle. Over the years, we have primarily bought British type feeder cattle. We have always bought and fed a lot of Hereford cattle with good results. Data from the Colorado State University (CSU) Hereford Study stimulated our interest in Hereford cattle as a source of beef with consistent quality."

Reisinger and his associates first approached AHA to discuss Midland's Quality Calf Program. The Iowa order buying firm was interested in locating new sources of high quality Hereford feeder cattle with superior genetics. In addition, they were searching for progressive producers who would cooperate with Midland's VAC 45 feeder calf backgrounding recommendations. Results from the CSU Hereford Study, which demonstrated a high degree of consistent quality, were a major factor in stimulating Midland's interest in expansion into marketing Hereford beef as a branded product.

"Four years ago, the American Hereford Association provided funding for the Colorado State University Hereford Study," said H.H. Dickenson, AHA executive vice president. "We had the opportunity to participate in a large scale project conducted by some of the most respected meats scientists in the world. The results from the CSU Hereford Study provide the breed with a very complete documentation of feedlot performance, carcass characteristics and eating quality of the final beef product."

The CSU Hereford Study represents the most comprehensive project ever undertaken by any breed to measure feedlot performance and merit of the end product. More over 2,000 Hereford and Hereford crossbred steers were involved in the study conducted by Colorado State University in cooperation with the feeding and packing divisions of Monfort ConAgra. The project design called for measuring feedlot performance and carcass merit at varying time-on-feed endpoints. Excellent feed conversion emerged as a strong Hereford trait as the dry matter feed conversion ranged from 5.35 to 5.65 pounds per pound of gain. Average daily gains of 3.84 to 4.09 pounds were recorded for test groups, and data concluded that Hereford cattle required fewer days on feed than the industry norm.

A very important pattern of beef quality and consistency emerged from the Hereford study as professional taste test panels sampled steaks from hundreds of test cattle. A desirable tenderness rating was achieved on 93 percent of the Hereford steaks sampled as compared to 78 percent for commodity Choice. Hereford Choice steaks outscored both USDA high Choice and USDA Choice for juiciness, flavor and overall palatability.

"The Hereford study results were impressive and convincing. Our company was seriously considering the marketing of a branded beef product. A thorough review of the Hereford study data, and our own experience in feeding good quality Hereford cattle, convinced Midland Cattle Co. that Certified Hereford Beef had great potential to answer beef industry problems of inconsistency and lack of quality. We are very pleased about our alliance with Hereford producers to market a very consistent, quality product," said Reisinger.

Midland Cattle Co. order buyers have been active in the feeder cattle market during the late summer and fall months of 1994. They expect to have some 25,000 to 30,000 head of Hereford and Hereford crossbred cattle on feed by year end. These numbers represent feedlot cattle owned by Midland and retained ownership cattle managed by the company. Cooperating feedlots are primarily located in Iowa and neighboring Nebraska.

"Quality cattle are worth more money," said Ralph Myrick, head order buyer for Midland. "We will add value to these cattle as we locate, segregate and properly feed and manage consistent genetics. I believe consistent quality should be the number one consideration in value based marketing."

In addition to his busy schedule of buying cattle, Myrick, along with Craig Huffhines, AHA director of Certified Hereford Beef programs, have conducted producer meetings in several states. Groups of cattlemen have learned of Midland's goals to buy high quality, genetically superior feeder cattle. The order buying company strongly encourages backgrounding and proper vaccinations and is willing to pay premiums for feeder cattle from producers following their quality calf program. In many instances, ranchers have offered cattle for sale at these producer meetings and feeders have been contracted and bought by Midland within days.

"One of the major differences in the Certified Hereford Beef program and other branded programs is that we identify live cattle that qualify when they are feeders," said Myrick. "We can do a much better job of controlling quality and consistency by buying high quality feeder cattle in the beginning. This, we believe, is better than trying to identify genetics at the back door of the packing house. We are buying straight Hereford and Hereford-British cross feeders."

Most of the feeder cattle earmarked for the CHB program are shipped by Midland to one of these feedyards at the present time: John Dorner, Milford, Iowa; Platte Valley Feedyard, Kearney, Nebraska; Duane Lewis Feedyard, Kearney, Nebraska; North Platte Feeders, North Platte, Nebraska; Dick Mercer, Kearney, Nebraska; JD Cattle Co., Kearney, Nebraska; Oak Ridge Feedlot, Sutherland, Iowa; Feller Feedyard, Wisner, Nebraska; and Maple Park Farms, Eldora, Iowa. One of Midland's objectives in their closely monitored feedlot management system is to control days on feed to avoid excess fat and maximize quality.

"We have deep roots in the Midwest and strongly believe corn-fed beef adds to the palatability and eating satisfaction of the end-product," said Reisinger.

Midland's recent expansion into the branded beef business has resulted in the formation of Mid Ag which will control the production and sales of CHB. Reisinger has brought the talents and experience of two top executives to Mid Ag to manage the beef operation.

Heading up Mid Ag's beef operations as general manager will be Dave Ellicott of Greeley, Colo. Ellicott left his position as category manager, fresh meats, for King Soopers, Denver, Colo., to take the position with Mid Ag. In his previous position, Ellicott was responsible for all fresh and frozen meat purchasing for King Soopers Retail Processing and Distribution Center which serves 69 retail locations. A native of Eads, Colo., Dave Ellicott is a Colorado State University graduate with a 1980 bachelor's degree in animal science. Dave's wife, Tami, will serve as Mid Ag's office manager and the couple will soon be relocating to Red Oak, Iowa.

Bringing with him a wealth of experience from the beef packing industry, Chuck Merrill, Parker, Colo., has been hired as manager of beef operations for Mid Ag. Merrill resigned from his position with Champion Boxed Beef Co., to take this new position. He has had previous experience with Beef America in Omaha, Neb., Circle C Meat Co., in Denver, Colo., and IBP. Chuck is a native of Wichita, Kan., and earned a degree in business administration from Wichita State University in 1973. He will primarily be responsible for sales and marketing and production operations for Mid Ag.

Association Introduces Industry Position

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Concluding several months of in-depth study, the American Polled Hereford Association (APHA) has issued a position and direction statement to define and strengthen the breed as a major contributor to the U.S. beef cattle industry.

Approved by the APHA board of directors and presented to the membership in November, the document titled "Polled Herefords-Keeping on Track" defines the breed's strengths, adequacies, and areas needing improvement. The document was prepared from breeder, commercial and industry surveys and discussions.

"This breed direction statement also goes a step further in establishing desirable ranges of EPDs and other objective measures to help Polled Hereford breeders add significant value to their seedstock and thus to the commercial herds who are our customers," said APHA President Ed Bible. "The breeders' intent was to accurately target the end product market and then assess where Polled Herefords can best fit in the efficient production of consistent, tender, tasty beef.

"We have a commitment to 'Keeping on Track.' Our breeders have not endorsed or described any one 'ideal' animal, but have instead given parameters and ranges of characteristics and values that will help direct the breed to profitable contributions to the industry."

Survey results first identified the current slaughter animals most likely to meet industry needs, based on results of the National Beef Quality Audit and other industry sources. That animal should have a slaughter weight of 1,100 to 1,250 pound, have a carcass weight of 650 to 750 pound, grade Choice to High Select, have a rib-eye area of 11.5 to 14 square inches, produce Yield Grade 2s and 3s, and have a fat thickness of 0.2 to 0.5 inches.

Respondents emphasized that calves produced from the Polled Hereford sire side must add growth, feed efficiency and muscling. On the dam side, Polled Hereford breeders must be concerned with milk, longevity and soundness, with no eye or udder problems.

"Most importantly," Bible said, "our breeders must know what kind of commercial cows their bulls will be bred to and what environment they're working in. Breeders must have a thorough knowledge of the market and customers' needs in order to maintain and enhance the breed's value."

Polled Hereford strengths established included efficiency and cost-cutting ability, disposition, the polled trait, crossing ability, adaptability, mothering ability and high-quality beef. Areas viewed as adequate are growth and longevity. Improvement should be focused on carcass traits, milk and muscling. It should be noted that APHA has just introduced a national carcass data collection program to address some of these issues.

Ranges for desirable EPDs, weights and frame sizes, specific to geographic areas, were also established.

"Generally speaking, our customers are looking for calving ease, optimums in growth and weights and trouble-free seedstock," Bible said. "Current growth appears to certainly be adequate in most areas. Productivity in a low-cost environment, a trait in which Polled Hereford excel, is highly important. Frame size and mature weights should fall in the moderate categories to meet industry needs. Polled Herefords can be the ideal 'moderator' to help get commercial herds back on track. It was noted that the breed offers the industry several profitable traits that require no additional inputs."

While there is no single, ideal animal suitable for the entire industry, Polled Hereford breeders have committed to providing the ranges of traits that will fit the market and have set breed enhancement and improvement as the keys for keeping the breed on track.

USMEF Postpones Vote On New Structure

ORLANDO, Fla., — After two days of deliberation, the U.S. Meat Export Federation board of directors voted to postpone a decision on whether or not to support a structure proposal from the beef industry's Oversight Committee.

As proposed by the Oversight Committee, the industry would create a new organization that would develop one plan and one set of priorities and would allocate beef industry dollars accordingly. The new organization would have specific centers of operation to address the eight leverage points outlined in the beef industry long-range plan. One of these centers would be responsible for domestic and international marketing.

Under the currently proposed plan, USMEF would contract with the new organization and would no longer work directly with the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB) and individual state beef councils. All beef checkoff dollars for national and international programs, including those from the state beef councils and the Cattlemen's Beef Board, would flow through the new organization.

The USMEF board was united in its support of the goals and leverage points contained in the plan but felt more time was needed to ask questions and more fully understand the implications of the proposed structure. The Oversight Committee completed its work on the structure proposal just two weeks prior to the USMEF meeting in Orlando.

The motion to postpone the vote included provisions for the USMEF board to reconvene and vote on the structure proposal at the NCA meeting in Nashville, January 25-28, 1995. The motion to vote in Nashville passed with 359 votes in favor and 117 votes opposed (five members passed on this motion).

"There were some strong differences of opinion and a big difference in the level of understanding between members," said Jim Mullins, outgoing USMEF chairman and one of four USMEF representatives on the Oversight Committee. Despite the differences, Mullins said, "it was great to hear people on this diversified board saying, 'We want to work together on this issue'."

USMEF directors who preferred to vote at the Orlando meeting were divided, with some favoring the proposed structure and some opposing. Those who favored the motion to postpone the vote were also divided but along different lines. On the one hand, some members in this group felt they didn't understand the details of the proposed structure well enough to make up their minds and wanted more time to ask questions and weigh the issues.

Other members of this group, however, felt they understood the plan but were uncomfortable with certain aspects of the proposed structure. It was their view that the Oversight Committee should be given more time to address these concerns prior to a vote. Chief among the concerns expressed in Orlando was the diminished opportunity for state beef councils to participate directly in USMEF affairs under the new structure.

After the USMEF Business Session early Friday evening, Mullins explained that, "What the beef industry is trying to do with its long-range plan is very, very important. I think the industry needs to be more focused and more effective than it is today. It's also important," he said, "that we continue to do the kind of job we've been doing in foreign markets. MEF has done a tremendous job in this regard, as evidenced by significant gains in both beef and pork exports."

The Oversight Committee has asked the four national organizations (USMEF, CBB, NCA and the Beef Industry Council of the National Livestock and Meat Board) to vote on the plan and for the new structure to be implemented by July 1, 1995. This time table, Mullins stressed, can still be met. He added that USMEF members who cannot attend the meeting in Nashville will have an opportunity to vote, possibly by proxy or absentee ballot.

WHEN THE SUN DOESN'T SHINE

Don't let a little rain put a damper on your haymaking. A New Holland Model 157 tedder will fluff up a rain-dampened, matted-down crop, fast!

The New Holland Model 157 tedder maneuvers easily because it's tractor mounted. And, tines spread windrows or swaths so air can flow through the crop—not over it.

Stop in today and let us show you how to make hay—rain or shine with the New Holland Model 157 tedder.
